FIEND BLAMED IN 'DOLLY' GIRL KILLING

Found dead in a gutter in Clapp street, Dorchester, five-year-old Dorothy Adams, of No. 1113 Harrison avenue, Roxbury, is believed by police to have been the victim of a fiendish motorist, who either killed her by accident and then fled, or attacked her in his car and threw her out to die in the street.

A man living in Harrison avenue, who was accused last July of an attempt to attack little Dorothy, known as "Dolly," the Queen of Harrison Avenue, was summoned to police headquarters for questioning by Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley.

Bloodstains found on her clothing by the medical examiner indicated foul play, police declared, and the spot where her body was found is more than a mile from her home—farther than such a tot would have walked, even on Halloween.

The only alternative to the foul play theory that the police would admit is that she was killed by a speeding driver who carried her far from her home to hide the accident and drove off, leaving her in the gutter.

Mystery surrounded the child's identity for near-

Why Pick on Goats?
Swords and Pens
Lo: The Fight King
An Unreal World

By Arthur Brisbane

HINDUS think it an outrageous sin to kill a cow. Mohammedans think it their duty to sacrifice cows as part of their religion.

Mohammedans think it outrageous to have processions with music. Mohammed didn't approve of music. Hindus must have music in their religious processions. Their gods want music.

So Hindus and the Musselmans compromise. Moslems can kill cows at any time they choose, but not in public places, and Hindus can have religious processions with music banging. England kills cows, enjoys music, and rules India easily.

Curiously enough Hindus on certain occasions sacrifice, with cruel butchering, hundreds of goats in religious rites, while they allow miserable cows to die of hunger and disease because it is a sin to kill them. Why pick on the goats?

Compare the swords and the pens of the world, the pen of Voltaire with the sword of Louis XIV, his contemporary; the sword of Frederick the Great with the pen of Goethe, Schiller, or Heine, the sword of any general in our Civil War with the pen of Lincoln.

The pen is mighty because it represents the BRAIN, the sword is weak because it represents the brute.

FALL-SINCLAIR JUROR AND BURNS DETECTIVES ACCUSED; TRIAL HALTS

Washington, Nov. 1 (I.N.S.).—With a Federal Grand Jury investigating charges of jury tampering, Justice Frederic L. Siddons this afternoon adjourned the Fall-Sinclair Teapot Dome oil lease conspiracy trial until tomorrow morning to render a decision as to declaring a mistrial.

Charges of jury tampering were presented to the judge at a secret session this morning, attended by opposing attorneys and the two defendants, Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall.

Later a presentment was made to the Federal Grand Jury, which happened to be in session, and several indictments were predicted.

The charges were contained in four affidavits presented first to the court of Justice Siddons by U. S. District Attorney Peyton Gordon.

Juror E. J. Kidwell, 31 years old, a leather worker, it was sworn to in two affidavits, asserted in a soft drink establishment that if he did not "come out of this case with an automobile as long as a block" he would be surprised.

He was quoted further as express-

2 MEN DYING OF STAB WOUNDS; GIRLS FLEE

An alleged insult to two girls led to a stabbing affray in the Back Bay today, ending when two men, one dressed in evening clothes, dropped to the sidewalk with stab wounds that may prove fatal and two other men, with the girls, leaped into an automobile and fled.

The names of the two victims are on the danger list at City Hospital and little hope is held for their recovery.

They are:

Arthur F. Murphy, 26, of No. 162 Dorchester street, South Boston.

John W. Thornton, 23, of No. 134 Redland road, West Roxbury.

A New York automobile, the registration number of which is known to the police, bore off the two alleged assailants and the two girls over whom the fight started, police said.

Although close to death from their wounds, Murphy and Thornton were able to give piece-meal versions of what occurred and the police wove the threads into the following version:

Thornton was walking along Boylston street and when opposite No. 1079 encountered two men and two girls in an automobile. The four were apparently Halloween merry makers.

As he passed the car, one of the

DEATH TAKES TUOHEY, VETERAN OF SPORTS

George V. Tuohey is dead.

The boxing and wrestling promoter, former sports editor and writer, and referee and baseball player of the big leagues in the old days, died shortly after noon today in St. Vincent Hospital, Worcester.

For several years he had been ailing, but he fought gamely against cirrhosis of the liver that forced him to give up active sports participation and finally take to his bed.

He was sixty-two years old and his whole life was filled with sports of all kinds. He even took one day while on vacation to wrestle with a cinamon bear at Yellowstone Park. On another occasion, while refereeing a wrestling match at Salem he was punched on the nose by the angry loser.

A short time later, while refereeing a match at Concord, N. H., Tuohey was clutched, through error,

CHAMBERLIN TO TEST 'DAWN' FOR OCEAN HOP

Hoboken, N. J., Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Clarence B. Chamberlin said today that he intended to test Mrs. Frances Grayson's amphibian plane, the Dawn, at Curtiss Field, L. Chamberlin also said he hoped soon to regain the world's endurance flying record by remaining aloft sixty hours continuously, if possible.

LAWYER'S DEATH HUNCH NETS HARVARD $150,000

New York, Nov. 1 (A. P.).—A lawyer's apparent foreboding that he would not survive a European trip has made Harvard University beneficiary of $150,000 under an agreement drawn up by William A. Purrington in 1926, it was disclosed today. Mr. Purrington survived the trip, but died a few days after his return.

The agreement distributed $185,-866 left to the lawyer by Dr. William Carr, founder and many years dean of the College of Dental Surgery. The apportionment was made among institutions in a manner that accorded with Dr. Carr's wish that Mr. Purrington would dispose of his estate as Dr. Carr would have done.

Because of Dr. Carr's desire, his projected trip and a realization "of the contingencies of human life," Dr. Purrington before his departure designated $150,000 for afHrvard and various sums to New York institutions.

Mr. Purrington directed that Harvard, at its discretion use the benefit "for research work in the field of medicine, with special reference to the application of medical knowledge to the special department of dentistry."

14 INJURED AS 'L' CAR CRASHES INTO TROLLEY

Careening down a slight grade on Boylston street, near Warren street, Brookline, a heavily-loaded steel Boston Elevated car hurled its nose in the rear of a standing Boston and Worcester car of wooden type, sending six persons to the hospital. Eight others were hurt in less degree.

A defective signal, police say, was a contributory cause. The signal had been giving trouble for three days, it was stated.

Those taken to the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital were:

Francis J. McCabe, Framingham Center, operator of the Boston and Worcester car, ruptured muscles of the left side and possible fracture of the left shoulder.

Horace A. Prescott, of No. 43 East Newton street, South end.

Death Lurks for Dolly While Goblins Grin

By VIN BROOKS

A REAL fiend was abroad in Boston on Halloween.

The incarnation of all of childhood's fancies of the night roamed through the streets of laughing children and chose his prey.

Close Dorothy Adams—little "Dolly" Adams, who was the five-year-old queen of Roxbury's Harrison avenue.

Let "Dolly" Adams, the limp, lifeless body of her in the gutter of a deserted street two miles from her home.

The witches that were hanged on Salem's Gallows Hill and ride their spectre-broomsticks on Halloween, the great, black bats of vampires, the dracula of a Bram Stoker's imagination never held for children the terror that claimed "Dolly" Adams last night.

Claimed her as she left her home at No. 1113 Harrison avenue, one tight-closed tiny fist clutching a dime, headed for the "Five 'n' Ten," "Five 'n' Ten" to buy a jack-o'-lantern.

You may only guess at the sacrifice that fiendish piece for a grinning yellow goblin for his favorite child cost George Adams, her father. It was the last dime he had. He's a former fireman, out of work, with a wife and five children to feed and clothe.

It was shortly after 5 o'clock that the little Queen of Harrison avenue left her home, the silver piece clamped tight by grimy fingers against its lining, happy in the promise of a hobgoblin of her own with which to frighten her playmates.

"I'm goin' to buy a jack-o-lantern," Dolly Adams told her brother, Edward.

"She said she was goin' to the 'Five 'n' Ten,'" said Edward. "I

FATHER IDENTIFIES CLOTHING OF SLAIN GIRL FOUND IN GUTTER

FATHER FAINTS IN MORGUE
George Adams of No. 1113 Harrison avenue, Roxbury, who identified dead girl's clothing.

ly 12 hours until George Adams, her father, went to the City Hospital mortuary today and identified the clothing as hers.

This occurred shortly after the police learned from Mr. and Mrs. Michael Murphy of No. 75 Clapp street that they heard a child moaning about 15 minutes before Patrolman James Bray found the little corpse, indicating that the child died where she was found.

Thought the moans were the "ghost play" of a child out playing Halloween pranks.

Instead of helping to clear up the mystery, the autopsy of the medical examiner, Dr. Timothy Leary, only increased it.

The cause of the child's death is not known, although she was found to have a fracture of the skull and two bruises inside the scalp. The fracture was not sufficient in itself to cause death, Dr. Leary declared.

Microscopic examination of the blood stains will be made, but this will take two or three days.

Foul Play Suggested

Dr. Leary found enlarged glands, the thymus and lymphatic glands, in the head and said this showed the child was more susceptible to fright than the average child.

He declared that, while her injuries were in some degree consistent with an automobile accident, it was very strange that the face, arms and hands were not gravel-scratched.

"First examination gave suggestions of foul play," said Dr. Leary. "More thorough examination somewhat reduced this impression, but did not eradicate it. There is a certain condition existing which must be studied microscopically before reporting on it.

"Meanwhile I shall report tentatively that the child came to her death from a cause unknown. I do not wish to state positively that her death was caused by an automobile or by other agencies.

"Regarding the automobile accident theory, I am 'stuck' because of the absence of scratches or cuts which would indicate that the body was dragged. It had not been dragged. That is certain."

Police Rush Probe

He notified the police that the investigation should be continued, and Superintendent Michael H. Crowley ordered Captain Fitzgerald of station 9 to put every policeman on the task of checking up various angles of the mystery.

Mrs. Murphy and neighbors told also of seeing a "big, shiny sedan" stop at the spot where the body was found. This was after the body had been removed by the authorities.

The entire neighborhood was awake, having been aroused by the police in efforts to find out who the victim was. Looking from their windows several persons saw the car come up the street, stop, saw the lights switched on to dim and then saw the car move off again as if the driver had looked for the body only to find it gone.

Little "Dolly" Adams' father slept all night, thinking his little girl was with friends in the Ellet square district of Roxbury. Mrs. Adams, the dead child's mother, was away helping a sick woman.

Dime for Lantern

Two other children, Helen, three, and Leo, 18 months, were with their mother. Two more, Edward, 6, and Roy, 4, were with neighbors for the night.

"Last night shortly after dark I gave poor little Dorothy a dime to get a jack o'-lantern at the five-and-ten," said Adams. "That was the last I saw of her."

Going into the street this morning he saw Patrolman John Cullinane and told him he thought perhaps his child was missing—for he was not sure she had gone to stay with the Elliot square friends.

Dad Faints in Morgue

"You better go up to the morgue and see if that little girl they found in Dorchester isn't yours," urged Cullinane. He gave Adams a description of the clothing and the father was quickly convinced the little girl was the victim.

Going to the mortuary at City Hospital, he looked at the clothing and said it was Dorothy's.

"My poor little girl, poor little kid," he said. He fainted over a desk in the office at the mortuary, and was too overcome to view the body.

Dorothy was seen in front of her house at 9:30 last night, the police learned from neighbors, and this accounted for her whereabouts within about forty-five minutes of the time she died.

The man who was to be questioned by Supt. Crowley was arrested and fined for drunkenness last July after Dorothy's parents sought a complaint against him charging attempted attack. Doctors who examined the girl explained to the parents that nothing harmful was done and the matter was dropped because the man involved was, as far as known, of good reputation.

At the office of the medical examiner, it was said, in the absence of Dr. Leary himself, that this case might explain some things found by the doctor in his examination.

Asked for Auto Rides

The little girl frequently asked strangers for money and auto rides, according to families living near the Adams home, and police were considering the possibility that she might have asked for a ride last night and later, frightened, leaped out of teh car.

Dorothy and a little chum were also given frequent rides on a bicycle by a boy living nearby and it was considered within the realm of possibility that she might have been striking o nthe handlebars of some bicycle last night and fallen off. This might account for the absence of scratches and bruises such as would be found in case of an automobile accident, police said.

Inquiry was made by the police to learn if Dorothy had been to the five-and-ten-cent stores near the Dudley street transfer station, about five minutes' walk from her home, after her father gave her money for a jack-o-lantern last night.

Clerks there said that all the lanterns were sold out yesterday afternoon. Fate had robbed Dorothy of a couple of hours of fun on Halloween before robbing her of life.

Little chums with whom she might have spent the evening could not remember having seen her. Nobody saw an automobile accident in or around that part of Harrison avenue last night. The street there is newly paved and is a cut used by drivers between Roxbury and Dorchester. Being well paved, it is frequently a place for speeding.

Meanwhile police all over the city had been trying to solve the mystery of the child's identity. Nobody in the neighborhood where her body was found knew her. There was a label in her little blue-serge, brass-buttoned coat with the name "Ruth Potter" on it.

Search was begun for all the Ruth Potters in Boston, but when Adams identified the clothing he explained that, the family being poor because he has been out of work for a long time, the coat had been given to them for the little girl to wear.

NEAR DEATH SPOT
Mrs. Josephine Murphy of 75 Clapp street thought children were up to more Halloween pranks.

MYSTERY AUTO AT SCENE OF GIRL DEATH

The strange appearance of a big closed automobile in Clapp street, at the scene of the finding of the body of little Dorothy Adams, was the subject of excited conversation in that neighborhood today.

The car was seen by Mrs. Josephine Murphy of No. 75 Clapp street and other persons at midnight, nearly two hours after the body had been found and removed by the police. Mrs. Murphy together with her husband, had previously heard a child's moans.

VISITED DEATH SCENE.

"We were all up, having been aroused by the policeman, who went to all the doors trying to identify the dead girl," said Mrs. Murphy. "We were surprised to see an automobile come through the street, coming from Boston street and going toward Massachusetts avenue and stop near my house.

"Where it stopped was where the girl's body was found. The bright lights were switched off and the parking lights came on. It stayed there a few minutes and then it sped away again.

"It looked to all of us as if a driver, responsible for the girl's death, had returned to the body. It was very gruesome and we have been talking about it ever since.

HEARD HER MOANS.

"Earlier, my husband and I heard the child's moans. That was before Policeman Bray found the body, about fifty feet from my front room here. My children had gone to bed, and I said to my husband that I was glad my child wasn't still out at Halloween fun. We thought the moans were just the 'ghost play' of a child.

"We went to bed and then were awakened by the policeman. He said the dead girl was about six years old and I ran upstairs to see if my little girl, Alice, who is six, was in bed. I guess all the neighbors were aroused and frightened."

Eileen Burke, thirteen, who lives in Clapp street, saw the big car that stopped at midnight and was the first to report it.

DOLLY'S DEATH SHADOWS 'MA'S BIRTHDAY!'

By FRANCES L. BAIRD.

"Oh, God, what a birthday present—my little Dolly killed!"

Wringing her hands and sobbing hysterically, Mrs. Mary Adams, mother of little five-year-old "Dolly" Adams, the child found dead in a Roxbury gutter, today declared that she never again will leave her children—there are three now left—in any other person's care.

"Oh, if I had been at home it would not have happened," she cried. "I should have searched for Dolly if she did not come back at once. She would not have gone out after dark if I'd been at home.

"But, their father is easy with them, and I left them home with him last night. He lets them do as they like on Halloween."

Visions of herself with other children carrying jack-o'-lanterns ascaring folks on Halloween night led little Dolly to demand a dime from her Daddy when he gave her brother Edward, eight, one to buy a lantern.

"I gave her the last dime I had," the father wept, "and she dashed happily out the back door to buy it before the ten cent store closed. I never saw her again."

Today is Mrs. Adams' birthday.

"Last year my birthday was spoiled by Edward getting burned severely when a playmate accidentally set fire to a mask he wore," she sobbed. "But to think that my pretty little baby girl should have been killed. Oh, how can I bear it?"

Dorothy had a habit of asking strangers for pennies for the movies," her mother explained, and the possibility of some man having lured her into an automobile with "movie" money might exist, she admitted.

"I had forbidden them to have masks on account of last year's accident," she said. "But I thought it was all right for them to have some fun on Halloween when their father was there to look after them. But I would not have allowed Dolly to go out after dark to buy anything."

The little girl's father is heartbroken and cannot speak of the tragedy without tears coursing down his cheeks.

"I couldn't deny her a jack-o'-lantern when I had forgotten to buy them. Halloween treats and had given Edward money to spend," he said. "God knows I never dreamed that harm lurked around anywhere or I would have gone to the store myself."

Crowley Orders Police to Find Girl's Slayer

Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley today ordered a rigid investigation in the case of Dorothy Adams. A general order issued by the superintendent reads:

"Dorothy Adams, a little girl, was found lying in the gutter on Clapp street at about 10:10 p. m., October 31, and whose body was warm when picked up by Patrolman Bray of Division 9, and later on arrival at the hospital was pronounced dead, according to an autopsy performed by Medical Examiner Leary, his opinion is that the injuries which caused the death of the child were consistent with girl's being struck by an automobile and carried from the place of the accident to the spot where the body was found on Clapp street.

"Division commanders of Divisions 5 and 9 will instruct officers on routes in the vicinity of Harrison avenue, Northampton street and Massachusetts avenue to make inquiries and endeavor to find some person or persons, who witnessed an automobile accident between 8 and 10 p. m., October 31, 1927.

"All division commanders will instruct their officers to make inquiries in garages and especially of washers and employes as to whether or not any automobile put up in their garage with any blood stains or other indication of an accident noticeable on the automobile."

Dad Gave 'Dolly' His Last Dime!

It was his last dime that George Adams, father of five-year-old Dorothy, gave to the little girl that she might buy a jack-o'-lantern. Not another cent remains in the home at No. 1113 Harrison avenue, from which the girl, now dead and i nthe morgue, departed, the father said, sorrowfully, today.

didn't see her after that. She never come back."

Edward is seven, the oldest in a family that last night was five children and today is four. Dark eyes, serious, peer out beneath a shaggy thatch of red hair as he tells you. He hitches one small hand beneath his little baa-baa coat and pulls the strap of his blue overalls. Stands one foot upon the other. Not sure just what is wrong, but knowing something is.

"She never come back," he says. With Edward and all about him plays his four-year-old brother, Roy. Black hair here, and startlingly black eyes. And a smile of white teeth. The smile is there because Roy's is no mind to fathom the question of a missing sister, nor weigh the import of tedious questions.

Two Vacant Chairs

Edward is not in his seat at the Albert Palmer School today.

"Papa said to stay home with Mrs. Sweeney."

He is in the second grade. There is another vacant seat in the first grade of the Palmer School. The chair where "Dolly" Adams sat before a desk to gain knowledge. On the road to education.

The little Queen of Harrison avenue travels a higher road today—All Saints' Day.

A road that stretches bright and far and wide toward and past the shining stars and beyond the confines of poverty and a high-walled street—a road without the terrors of night and Halloween, and fiends that men call human—a road with all the bright promise of childhood dreams wailing, splendid, at the end.

"Dolly" Adams missed a Hallowe'en party last night. Opposite the club red brick three-story apartment building that houses on the first floor the Adams home lives Mrs. Catherine Sweeney and her three children.

"I had a little party for them at about half-past eight. I sent Eddie, my oldest, across the street to get 'Dolly' to come over. She came back and said there was nobody home at all."

Just Like a Queen

Perhaps, even then, the horror of Halloween had claimed the queen.

And "Dolly" Adams was a queen. The whole neighborhood tells you that. The brightest most loveable, most promising child in the district. Even Mrs. Sweeney, with three of her own, says it.

And listen to Maurice Adelman, who conducts a service station on the corner of Eustis street and Harrison avenue:

"Smart, mister? I'll say she was. She came over to visit me often.

"You makin' a lot of money, Mr. Adelman?' she'd ask. I'd tell her I was making some.

"'You got a big, new automobile, Mr. Adelman.'

"She would come over for a chat and sit here like a little queen, mister. Smartest kid in this neighborhood. When I had some wood I'd give it to her to take home for a fire.'

Sort-voiced here, with no parade of philanthropy.

"She wasn't hit by an automobile around here," said Adelman. "I was outside my filling station until after 10 o'clock, all the time. I'd know, I keep an eye on these kids."

Directly across from the Adams home in the rear of Mrs. Sweeney's C. S. Walker conducts a junk business.

A Street of Sorrow

"She was a girl the whole neighborhood loved. Smart, but nothing fresh about her. We're all sorry."

His gray mustache trembles a bit.

Along Harrison avenue, near Dudley, where last night young voices cried in glee from behind ogre masks and grinning Jackos shone toothless, and shrill horns were blown and white sheets over young bodies went drifting past — along Harrison avenue, near Dudley, there is a strange quiet today.

Warmth of a sun that is no longer bright, a black door, chalk-marked "1113" stern-visaged with no openings and shuttings.

Leo and Helen, who are one and two, respectively, are with their mother at the home of a friend. Roy and Edward play across the street, one soberly, one with childish abandon. The father goes the aimless round of a hopeless treadmill labeled Sorrow, from Morgue to police station, from police station to morgue. To the morgue.

And Dolly Adams? In the morgue, the police say, plucked lifeless from the dead leaves of Clapp street's gutter where the fiend who took her eager life tossed her broken body.

Before Throne at Last!

But not in the morgue, Harrison avenue claims. That might be her body there. A shrug of shoulders. But that's not Dolly Adams.

Dolly Adams has gone the long, high road to the stars, laughing now as she laughed at the promise of a jack-o'-lantern. With no memory of witches and bats and ghosts—and fiends. No memory of a fiend.

Dolly Adams, six years a Queen, is before the Throne at last!

LABEL INFORMS MOTHER HER GIRL IS DEAD

In tears, and bemoaning the fact that he had no money with which to pay the funeral expenses of his slain child, Dorothy, because he has not worked for eight months, George Adams today went sorrowfully to No. 34 Lynde street, West End, to tell his wife of the tragedy.

But the mother, who was at work caring for a woman who is ill, already knew of it. Early in the forenoon, a neighbor in Lynde street called her attention to the story in the newspapers about the unidentified little girl found dead in Dorchester.

"Guess her name's Ruth Potter, for that name's on a label in her coat," said the neighbor.

Mrs. Adams' face blanched and to the other woman's astonishment he burst into tears.

"Oh, that's my little girl," she cried. "Why that's the name in my lotty's coat. I got it for her at ally Waters' and didn't bother to ake the old label out."

Seizing the paper she read the full description and knew for certain then that it was her little girl that was killed.

"What will I do, oh, what will I do?" she cried over and over again.

George Adams, explaining his lack of funds even for funeral expenses, said he was forced to resign from the fire department last January because he was in debt to the extent of about $600.

Since that time, he said, he has received $18 a week from the Boston Welfare Society, doing odd jobs such as splitting wood at the Hawkins street city yards in return. The amount he receives is the maximum because he had five children.

He said Dorothy frequently went up to the house in Eliot square for Sunday dinners, and he felt sure all last night that she was there.

DENTIST, WIFE REACH TERMS IN SUIT

Announcement that a settlement had been reached in the cross suits for divorce of Dr. Stephen P. Mallett, Marlborough street dentist, and Mrs. Evelyn Kaylor Mallett of Waban, was made in Middlesex Superior Court today.

Dr. Mallett, who lives in Longwood Towers, Brookline, charged his wife with cruel and abusive treatment, and with misconduct on a steamer on the high seas. Mrs. Mallett, daughter of a Norfolk, Va., coal baron, countered with charges of cruel and abusive treatment. There has been a battle over the custody of two minor children, Stephen P., Jr., seven, and Charles K., five.

Following a series of conferences between Charles F. Choate, counsel for Dr. Mallett, and Lothrop Withington, representing the wife, it was announced the charge of misconduct would not be prosecuted.

Both of the principals were present. Later another conference was held, which resulted in announcement a settlement had been reached. Judge Lummus stated he would continue to hear testimony on the cruelty and abuse charge until recess and instructed the principals to continue the discussion of their pleadings during that period.

Catherine Gillis, a maid, testified to overhearing quarrels in which Mrs. Mallett's voice was always raised. She told of seeing Dr. Mallett with a black eye and of hearing his wife called him names.

Parking Seen as Hub's Vital Traffic Issue

Free and unrestricted use of Boston streets for parking private automobiles, wherever parking does not interfere with the flow of commerce, should be permitted, Prof Miller McClintock of Harvard, head of Mayor Nichols' traffic survey committee, declared at today's luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce.

The traffic expert, who was one of two principal speakers at the luncheon marking Civic Day in the present Progress Week activities, described the magnitude of six months' intensive study conducted by the survey committee.

"There are very few cities in the United States, Boston included, which utilize their streets to within 50 per cent. of their capacity," he said.

MUSTN'T INTERFERE.

"It is the purpose of the Traffic Survey to find means by which existing facilities may be put to their full use without increasing those facilities. Wherever parking does not interfere with the flow of traffic and the conduct of business, free and unrestricted use of curb parking should be permitted, with an equitable distribution of curb space.

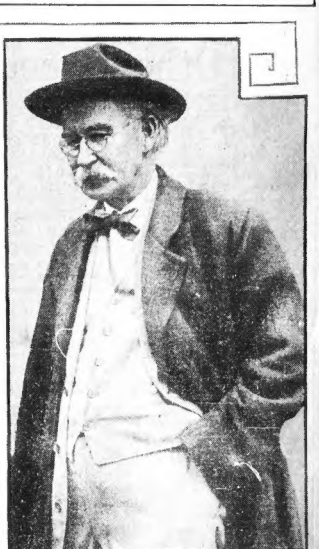
Prosecutor, Defendants ~ And Women Jurors ~ In Suspended Oil Trial



GOVERNMENT COUNSEL IN FALL-SINCLAIR TRIAL
Assistant District Attorney Joseph Burke, Special Prosecutor Atlee Pomerene, former U. S. senator from Ohio, and Assistant District Attorney Camarillo of Federal prosecutors in the trial of Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair for conspiracy in the Teapot Dome lease.

SHOCKED BY DISCLOSURES
Former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair, co-defendants, were described as greatly affected by today's disclosures of alleged jury tampering that caused a halt of oil "plot" trial.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON HAPPENINGS IN SOCIETY

TWO EXTREMELY LOVELY DEBUTANTES MADE THEIR BOWS TOGETHER LAST EVENING. MISS Augusta Hallett and Miss Emily Prescott Warren adhered to the prevailing vogue for the double presentation, and accomplished their debuts imposingly via a large dance at the Hotel Somerset. Every bud invokes the gods hoping to look her loveliest for the debut. And Miss Hallett and Miss Warren, starry-eyed and roseleaf-cheeked, with the thrill of actually coming out were delightful to behold.

THE TWO DEBUTANTES MIGHT WELL BE TWINS, SO SIMILAR IN TYPE ARE THEY. THEY ARE, in reality, cousins. But their "twinship" was strikingly emphasized by gowns and shoes, bouquets and jewels exactly similar. For the coming out party they wore silver frocks of lame and metal lace, done in the graceful robe de style. The rippling hemlines lifted just a bit to show coquettish silver shoes with brilliant studded heels. Skirts of silver lace were bouffant and bodices of lame were snugly moulded, and glinted with rhinestones at one shoulder. Their bouquets were white in frilled holders.

MRS. HALLETT, IN TRANSPARENT VELVET of blue-lavender, and Mrs. Warren, in black velvet with tracery of rhinestones, received with the debutantes. The Hotel Somerset's handsome ballroom, with its coloring of white and gold and rose, was further beautified with clustered balloons of pale silver-gilt, and the faint green tracery of Southern smilax was everywhere. For the ladies' dinner before the dance, the Blue Room of the hotel carried a delicate profusion of yellow and rose chrysanthemums.

AS HEAD OF THE USHER SQUAD EDWARD MERRIHEW HALLETT, JR., marshalled some twenty young men, two of whom were Stanley Hallett and Stanley Warren (each a brother of a bud.) Miss Warren is the daughter of Mr. Prescott Warren and Miss Hallett's parents, hosts for last evening's celebration, are Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Hallett of Newton. Tomorrow evening the Hotel Somerset is en fete again for the debutante world when Mr. and Mrs. George H. Swift entertain in honor of their bud daughter, Miss Ruth Swift. The affair is another large dance.

WHEN A SOCIETY SONGSTRESS DECIDES to try her talents on the concert stage there is always more than a stereotyped interest manifest among her Smart Set intimates. Such is the case with Mrs. S. Parker Bremer's concert debut, arranged for November 17, at Jordan Hall. Mrs. Bremer comes to town after a Summer in New England and a year or so in Rome and those who have met her since her return declare her as charmingly girlish in appearance as any one of her daughters.

MRS. BREMER IS NOW DOMICILED IN A delightful apartment at the foot of Beacon Hill. Since that section, once a region principally "Mawa," is now converted into residences and apartments of quaint charm, its favor has grown phenomenally. Mrs. Bremer's apartment is a gem, having been "done over" by no less a genius with period decoration and fittings than Henry Sleeper, whose Enat Gloucester home is pronounced perfect by everyone so fortunate as to visit it.

DR SARAH ELLEN PALMER'S LUNCHEON today at No. 40 Beacon street is a preliminary to an informal festivity at which this eminent woman surgeon, turned lecturer, entertains several confreres. Tomorrow these will, in turn, be ushers for Dr. Palmer at the Museum of Fine Arts when she gives her illustrated talk on "Romance in the Streets of Paris." Mrs. C. Minot Weld is recently added to the sponsor list that includes Mrs. David Little, Mrs. Phillip L. Saltonstall and others of similar prominence.

Boston Evening American Staff Photos

AUGUSTA HALLETT came out last evening at a big dance at the Somerset.

AN AUCTION, ADDED TO OTHER CHARITY BALL attractions, will furnish a hilarious half hour, at least, to the climax of the Christopher Shop fete on November 8. Of course everyone connected with the bazaar preceding the ball prays devoutly for a record-breaking sale. But, however vigorous is the buying, there's always something left in the stalls when the closing gong rings. Hence an auction.

THERE'S A CERTAIN PROMINENT SPORTS-MAN-FINANCIER of the town's elect who may consent to be the "auctioneer." It's a role in which he shines. Of wit and repartee he has a ready flow, and as for persuasive powers he can wheedle the bird right off its branch. So that even the most parsimonious (and Boston has few of those) parts with his shekels smilingly. The box list for the Ball is distinctly impressive — Society appears to be rallying superbly to the Christopher Shop cause.

get his money than to take away his championship.

We live in a hard, unreal world. An unfortunate man repairing an electric light sign sixty feet up in the air lost his foothold on a ladder, swung around, clinging desperately with his hands. A crowd said, "It's a funny stunt, probably advertising some movie," and watched the "stunt" until the man fell.

This is a gambling world, as well as an unreal world. In New York, as an example, and in other places, those that might be doing something worth while, turning their time and effort to profit, can bet on horse racing in the afternoon, stocks in the morning, greyhounds and cards at night.

Mr. Mellon says he can only afford to cut taxes $225,000,000 just now. Those that have income tax to pay will admit that a $225,000,000 cut is better than "being hit on the head with a sharp stone."

King Alfonso of Spain wants a tunnel under the Straits of Gibraltar, connecting Africa and Spain. England and France NEED a tunnel under the English Channel connecting those two countries, but the English conservatives are afraid to risk it.

France would never bother invading England with men when her airplance would enable her to annihilate every English city with ease in one day.

It is suggested that the dirigible Los Angeles is ready to be scrapped. Germany says a good Zeppelin like the Los Angeles should last five years.

Why doesn't our government experiment with a modest-sized dirigible gas bag made of metal, duralumin, a mixture of aluminum, steel, copper. It would weigh less than a gas bag, last much longer and lightning wouldn't strike it. This country is rich enough to make some experiments instead of merely depending on foreigners and private initiative.

Russia says she can now afford to reduce armaments and will co-operate with the League of Nations. That, if sincere, is good news for western Europe. The power of Russia, with Asia back of her and Germany deprived of her big army, is Europe's nightmare.

DEACONS QUIT STRATON'S CHURCH; CALL HIM 'CUCKOO'

New York, Nov. 1 (A.P.)—Dr. John Roach Straton's recently inaugurated "Holy Ghost healing services" have caused thirty resignations or promises of resignations from his congregation in Calvary Baptist Church Stephen A. Bradford, a former deacon, said today.

"I myself am going to resign in the very near future," said Dr. Bradford, adding that Dr. Straton is "like a cuckoo" in that he "lays the eggs of strange doctrines in what is supposedly a Baptist organization."

Most of the dissenters have been welcomed into Central Baptist Church in what they call an "escape" from "Holy Roller" ceremonies conducted by Dr. Straton on Sunday nights. In these the pastor claims successful healings of disease by the simple laying on of hands.

Among those who have resigned are Adolph Lindewall, chairman of the board of deacons and a trustee; Oliver Hurst, president of the Young People's work at Calvary, and Miss Clara Thomas.

Healthy little bodies will win!

A CHILD'S life is a fight! Danger Days are always ahead. Danger Days — the days when little lives hang in the balance — may come next year, next month, or perhaps — tomorrow. Your children must meet these Danger Days. Are they ready? Will they win? That is largely up to you. If they are robust — if they have well nourished bodies—they will battle their way to healthy manhood and womanhood.

Healthy bodies are safe bodies

Health comes from sunshine, fresh air, sound sleep, vigorous exercise, and above all — nourishing food. The foods your children eat are the building materials of which their growing bodies are made. Healthy bodies cannot be made of poor materials. Active, growing bodies need more than plenty of food! There are Danger Days ahead. They need the right kind of food. It must contain the vital elements for making strong bones, sound teeth, firm flesh, red blood, and worlds of energy for tomorrow. Who knows — tomorrow may be the Danger Day! If any single vital element is missing from the food of boys and girls, no amount of fresh air, exercise or sleep can supply it. What are these vital elements? Where can they be found? Every mother owes it to her children to know.

Whole wheat builds resistance

When nature conceived the grain of wheat, she created a spark of life. She crowded into the whole wheat berry the very food elements essential to life and growth. In Ralston, the whole wheat cereal, children get the things which bodies must have to fortify them against the Danger Days to come — for none of the vital elements of whole wheat have been removed in making Ralston.

Ralston will give your youngsters the calcium and phosphorus for building sturdy bones and hard white teeth — the proteins that will make firm solid flesh — the iron that makes red-blooded boys and girls—carbohydrates for energy—the bran that insures normal elimination—and the vitamins of life and growth.

Let Danger Days come— the Ralston boys and girls will be ready for them!

Use the Danger Days Coupon

We have a most important new booklet for you, that every mother should read. It tells all about Danger Days —how you can recognize them — how you can fortify your boys and girls against them. It is 32 pages fully illustrated. Send for it. It may mean warding off many Danger Days!

The coupon will bring your complimentary copy, and also a unique novelty for the children called the "Magic Blackboard."

Mount Pleasant Ia., Nov. 1 (A.P.)—Election of James Ephelin Coons of Dallas as superintendent of Iowa Wesleyan College has been announced, following a special meeting of the board of trustees.

Dr. Coons succeeds Dr. H. S. Gullt, who resigned last June to return to the ministry.

13 ARE INJURED; TRIPLETS SAFE

Thirteen persons were injured and eight-months-old triplets escaped unscathed in three automobile accidents in Somerville today.

Lee, Porter and Thomas Noland, triplet sons of Mrs. Maude B. Holland of Caroline avenue, Jamaica Plain, escaped without a scratch when the sedan in which they were riding was in collision with another car at Somerville avenue and Conwell place. Mrs. Holland was enroute to Cambridge Relief Hospital for aid for injuries, as was her cousin, Miss Anna Madden of Washington street, Roxbury.

At Somerville avenue and Prospect street collision of two machines resulted in injuries to Christenner and Regina di Franco, Anna Jackson, Dorothy Harries, Doris Vernon and Bart J. O'Connor. The latter suffered a possible fractured skull.

The third accident occurred in Webster street when Charles W. Hayes of Arlington, driving a heavily loaded car, tried to avoid hitting Anthony Maddeos. He failed, and Maddeos went to Somerville Hospital with head injuries.

In swinging the wheel, Hayes drove his car into a fence, slightly injuring Catherine Scully, Katherine Callahan, James V. Scully and Joseph P. Sanborn, who were riding with him.

Lya Deputti Injured

Berlin, Nov. 1 (I.N.S.)—Lya Deputti Hungarian motion picture actress, who is noted for her beauty in both Europe and America, is in the hospital today suffering from severe cuts on the leg sustained when she accidentally fell down stairs in her home. Her leg was cut by window glass.

5-Year Marriages Urged by Judge "to Fit Law"

Los Angeles, Nov. 1 (A.P.)—Five-year term marriages with option of renewal were advocated today by Judge Charles S. Burnell, presiding jurist of the Los Angeles Superior Court, in order to adjust "book law to current usage."

"Our divorce courts are jammed with litigants who are victims more of an outworn legal procedure than of guilty actions," Judge Burnell declared. "Divorce actions agreed upon by husband and wife produce a steady flow of perjury and legal subterfuge."

Miss Rasche today made public a telegram she said she sent Mrs. Grayson at Old Orchard, Me., Saturday, offering to act as co-pilot. Mrs. Grayson said she had not received the telegram, but would be glad to listen to any proposition any pilot "made direct."

CHAMBER ASKS TAX SLASH OF $400,000,000

Washington, Nov. 1 (A.P.)—With the recommendation of the Treasury that tax reduction be held to a $225,000,000 maximum before them, members of the House ways and means committee were urged today by the United States Chamber of Commerce to make a tax slash of about $400,000,000.

James R. MacColl, speaking for the chamber, said that "it is common knowledge that in recent years the actual surplus has greatly exceeded the estimates."

PARK REPORT BY M'CLINTOCK

"It should be borne in mind, however, that there is one garage in Boston which has more parking space than all the curbs of the city.

"Where parking is not essential and interfers with use of the streets for business, it should be abolished.

"No relief proposed by the committee will be of any value unless it benefits business. No rule for control of automobiles or pedestrians, unless a safety regulation, will be of any advantage unless it increases accessibility to the business centre.

"During six months the survey committee studied more than 2,000 accidents to determine the contributing factors; has covered 158 posts of observation, studied 31,000 parked cars to determine the reasons for their parking; questioned 99,000 drivers as to destination and origin; checked the movements of 1,900,000 pedestrians and over 3,000,000 vehicles.

"At one point Governor square, it was necessary to place twenty-two observers to study seventy-two possible turns of traffic.

"It was found that 800,000 persons daily enter the business east of Charles satreet. Forty eight per cent. come by the Elevated system; 24 per cent. by private motors; 13 per cent. on foot, and 10 per cent. by train.

"There are a few problems more vital to the commercial progress of the city than that of street traffic. Without internal transportation facilities, it is of little use to have external facilities of transportation and from the metropolis.

"Clogging of the streets means huge waste of time, convenience and diverted business."

PURCHASING POWER! No two words in the lexicon of selling are of more importance to the merchandiser. Money—the ability to buy—is the first requisite in the prospective customer. It is the first consideration of the successful manufacturer.

New York Evening Journal readers have money. Their collective purchasing power is enormous. They are people of substance, with a bank balance and a high standard of living. They live well, dress well, and enjoy the good things of life. They have both the means and the desire to buy.

The Power to Buy

It has been proved by innumerable tests that the readers of the New York Evening Journal can and do buy anything from grand pianos and motor-cars to the best known cigarettes and breakfast foods. In the automobile field, for example, surveys show that New York Evening Journal readers own a high percentage of quality makes, and that these cars are the latest models and the best designs.

The Favored Medium

The fact that many of the leading merchants of Greater New York spend more money in the New York Evening Journal than in any other New York newspaper is additional and conclusive proof that the readers of this great newspaper have the money and the will to spend. For 12 consecutive years the advertisers of New York have spent more money in the New York Evening Journal than in any other New York evening newspaper.

And this moneyed group of the New York Evening Journal readers is tremendously large! In the 680,681 homes served by the New York Evening Journal, there are over 2,000,000 consumers—nearly half the people who buy New York evening newspapers buy the New York Evening Journal.

These more than 2,000,000 consumers—with money—can all be reached at one stroke by the New York Evening Journal. And the special Saturday edition—alone among New York dailies—offers the tremendous pulling power of color advertising to progressive and aggressive merchandisers. In the first nine months of 1927 color advertising in the Saturday Home Journal showed an increase of 81%!

The World's Richest Market

There is no market anywhere that can offer the wealth, the population, or the sustained, consistent demand available in the New York market. Dominate it with the New York Evening Journal!

SOVIET SHIPS LUMBER SUPPLY TO PROVIDENCE

Providence, Nov. 1 (A.P.)—An attempt by the Soviet government to introduce Russian lumber to the American market, despite an inevitable loss due to Pacific Coast competition, was seen today in the arrival at 3,300,000 feet of Russian red wood and whitewood on the Norwegian freighter Wilfred, A. C. Dutton, of the Dutton Lumber Company, to which the wood was consigned, said his firm had agreed merely to unload the lumber and store it for the Soviet government's agency in New York, the Amtorg Trading Company, Inc., which he said he expected would lose money on it.

2 DYING AFTER BATTLE IN STREET

men leaped out and accused him of trying to flirt with the girls. An argument followed. The second man leaped from the car and both attacked Thornton, who was in evening clothes

At this juncture Murphy passed in his automobile Seeing one man battling against two he joined in the fray and tried to restore peace. As he rushed up the supposed New Yorkers whipped out knives and slashed right and left.

Both Murphy and Thornton dropped under the savages attack and the slashers leaped into their machine and fled out through the Fenway with the two girls.

Murphy, first to recover, dragged Thornton to his car and drove back to the corner of Boylston and Ipswich streets. There he stopped and entered a building in which are several doctors' offices, in search of medical attention for himself and Thornton.

At the top of the first flight of stairs, his strength left him. A moment later his inert form toppled down the entire flight landing in a crumpled heap at the bottom.

From the automobile, Thornton saw Murphy's plight. Stiffing back his own pain, Thornton stumbled from the car to go to his aid. Halfway across the sidewalk he collapsed in a heap.

At this moment Robert Peabody, an Independent taxi driver, appeared on the scene, took in the situation at a glance and bundled both wounded men into his cab, racing with them to the City Hospital.

Dr. Robert W. Coleman, night superintendent, found Murphy suffering from deep gashes in the side, shoulders and neck. Thornton received wounds in the head, neck and shoulders, in both instances the jugular veins escaped being severed by a bare fraction of an inch.

Both lost a large quantity of blood during their effort to find a doctor and this fact, doctors said, may prove fatal.

Meanwhile hospital officials flashed word of the stabbing to police headquarters. A detail of police was rushed into the Fenway from the Back Bay station and all units of the "flying squadron" were furnished with the number of the automobile. Captain William W. Livingston went to the hospital and secured statements from both men.

Woman Shows Knee! Yes, But This Was to British Judge

London, Nov 1 (A.P.)—It staid British court gave spectators the shock of their lives today when it permitted a woman's knee to be shown to a jury.

A woman plaintiff in a suit for damages was asked by her counsel to exhibit her knee.

Lord Hewart, the lord chief justice, surprised the crowd by remarking:

"It is quite usual for women to show their knees nowadays."

Thereupon the plaintiff, Miss Marjorie Rose Beck, lifted her skirt just a trifle and showed her right knee.

Miss Beck was suing for damages from a surgeon.

FALL-SINCLAIR TRIAL JURORS ACCUSED

ing great admiration for Harry F. Sinclair and saying that while he, Kidwell, did not hope to gain by a conviction he did hope to gain by an acquittal verdict.

The assistant prosecutors said they discovered reports showing a concentration of Burns detectives, and that each juror in the case was under surveillance with the exception of Robert C. Flora.

These detectives were said to have started work the day the jury was sworn in, ascertaining to whom the jurors talked, where they visited and the license number of cars in which they rode.

The prosecutors swore that they found documents showing that the manager of the Burns agency frequently was in touch with the "client" taking instructions and obtained quarters at the hotel to be "nearer the client's home and out of the beaten path."

In one instance, the affidavits said, the operatives had investigated the ownership of a home by a juror, whether it was mortgaged, and who held the mortgage. It was alleged also that investigations were made into the financial condition of a man who lived next door to a juror, "all for the purpose of establishing a point of contact with the juror in question."

The detectives' reports were said to have shown that large sums of expense money were given the detectives, in some instances running as high as $50 for a single day.

All jurors were constantly shadowed, it was charged, and in one instance a detective took a room in the same house with a juror.

It was charged that records found there deectives were reporting to a man named A. Mason Day at the home of Donald Woodward, one of Washington's leading merchants. Woodward and A. Mason Day, who is vice-president of the Sinclair Exploration Company, both appeared today before the Grand Jury.

A third affidavit, sworn to by Assistant District Attorney Neil Burkinshaw, asserted that the Burns Detective Agency of New York had from 14 to 15 operatives in Washington looking into every possible activity of each juror, their financial status, etc.

Assistant District Attorney Shee, who made the fourth affidavit, accompanied by two deputy marshals and a headquarters detective, made the raid on the Burns headquarters. The affidavit stated they found there the manager and three operatives.

The two affidavits concerning Kidwell were made by J. Ray Akers, who heard the conversation, and by Don Key Kink, reporter for the Washington Herald, who met Akers by appointment and received from the latter the information upon which the Washington Herald based its story today, in which a mistrial was forecast.

One affidavit said that Kidwell remarked he had been selected as a juror because he was "a pretty good yes and no man," and that "these smart lawyers" could not make him say what he didn't want to say, also he was "getting his $5 a day," for jury service and "was not paying a whole lot of attention to what was going on."

Justice Siddons' action in adjourning court until tomorrow came as a surprise. It is understood to have been decided up on to afford the Federal Grand Jury, sitting in a nearby court ample time to sift the charges of jury irregularities.

The penalty for conspiracy to tamper with a jury is the District of Columbia is six years in jail and a fine of $5,000.

WIND SAVES PROVINCETOWN FROM FIRE

Provincetown, Nov. 1.—A shift in the wind today saved Provincetown's picturesque waterfront from destruction at the hand of a firebug but not in time to avert a property loss of more than $190,000.

The Puritan Cold Storage plant at the east end of the town and the home of Captain Manuelo Costa were burned to the ground.

This is the tenth time in as many weeks that Provincetown has been visited by fires of suspicious origin. Townspeople were today formed into a large vigilance committee seeking the wielder of the flaming torch.

For more than four hours the town's fire department, augmented by several hundred citizens, fought a winning battle against the flames. With their backs literally to the wall, the tired fire-fighters strove to save several hundred houses in the eastern section of the town. A southerly wind was blowing blazing embers among them. Hope of saving them was at lowest ebb when, as though by the hand of magic, the wind veered.

The keen fisherfolk were quick to discover the shift in the wind and forty divers arose from a thousand throats.

Fire Chief James Barnett immediately communicated with the State Police in Boston and inspectors were assigned to start a probe of the fire.

J., Nov. 1 (A.P.)—Bruce Wellington, well known executive of the Boy Scout organization in the East, and former secretary of the North Bergen County Scout council, today was named defendant in a divorce action filed by Mrs. Isabel Wellington of this city. Wellington was said to be in Reno Nev. The papers named Mabel Russel, divorcee, of Hackensack. The Wellingtons were married in New York city in 1921 and have two children.

Mail Plane Lost in Fog Wrecked by Railroad Train

Washington, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—The demolishing of an airplane by a railroad train was reported today to Chief Inspector Grant B. Miller of the Post-office Department. Inspector O. P. Williamson, at Philadelphia, telegraphed that the eastbound overnight mail plane from Chicago bound to New Brunswick, N. J., had become lost in the fog and alighted on the tracks of the Reading Railroad near New Market, N. J., at 6:30 o'clock this morning.

A train crashed into the plane, but there were no casualties. The pilot was slightly injured on landing. Guards were sent to take care of the mail.

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

RADIO CHANGES MADE TODAY

Today the decisions of the Federal Radio Commission go into effect, causing many changes locally and nationally. Broadcasting stations in New England are affected in this change, which is a 60-day experiment. In Boston WNAC, the Shepard Stores, is moved from 353 meters to 461.3 meters. WBIS of Boston is also to use this wavelength, but will only broadcast during four hours of the day. WBIS has been authorized to use 500 watts power.

WEEI, Edison Electric Illuminating Company, has been changed to 546 meters so listeners will not receive interference from WJZ.

Both WEEI and WNAC have applied for permission to construct transmitters outside Metropolitan Boston. This would allow application for more power than the present city limits—500 watts.

RADIO DIALOG

by WILLIAM RANDOLPH

WEAF entertained us for an hour last night from 8:30 on with constant volume and great clarity. Since this station has moved into the suburbs of N. Y. C. it has thrived on fresh air and country milk. The results are evident; now we hear it much better than ever before. As we listened WEAF did not fade once during the whole hour. Incidentally, the program was as good as some of the mid-evening stuff we occasionally hear from locals.

* * *

Roxy and his flock flew the general course of an hour and a half from WJZ via WBZA. Roxy, we understand, is still the grandpa of pretzel announcing. It is said he can never announce his program in advance, as he never knows what he will so. Whether this is true or not, the program always seems impromptu and spontaneous. Which is Roxy's success.

* * *

Static arrived back to business feeling strong and insistent after the week-end. It was heard steadily and loudly on all the various waves and frequencies authorized by the Radio Commission. We did manage to hear a few stations through the uproar: WBZA, Virginia Beach; WMSG WMCA, WEAF, New York; WEAN, Providence; WICC, Bridgeport; KDKA, Pittsburgh, and WTAG, Worcester, were audible. KDKA has been very weak with us the last few weeks.

* * *

At 8:30 P. M. the score on local broadcasters was exactly even—WEI-I, WNAC, WBZA. WBET we could not find, although our paper listed it. A little after 8:30 an announcer rushed in and said some wrinkles had crawled into the new transmitter at Medford. All the tailors in Medford had closed shop, so much time was lost until a flatiron was procured. Transmission was too sharp with resulting distortion. It will be soon remedied.

* * *

WEAN, Providence, was listed as carrying the WNAC program which it did not while we listened. The reason became apparent. The WEAN crowd was playing so much faster than up here that they raced ahead of WNAC. This is the station which gives Providence people so many attractive programs.

* * *

Reception was on a seven-tube, electrically Lowered Kellogg.

RADIO IS BETTER WITH BATTERY POWER

Stick to batteries

You can't beat batteries for radio. Battery power is smooth, silent—ever ready at the turn of the switch. And no battery has proved so economical, so long-lived as the patented big Eveready Layerbilt "B" Battery No. 486. This unique battery contains more active materials than any other battery of equal size, because it is built up in layers—the only "B" battery so made.

You'll get more satisfaction from your radio with Layerbilts, your power costs will be less in the long run, and you won't have to buy "B" batteries nearly so often. They are made by the National Carbon Company and backed by its reputation and resources.

FULL TOLL IN IRELAND STORM NOT YET KNOWN

Belfast, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—It was feared today the full toll of Friday's storm now estimated at more than half a hundred was not full record ed. Communication with Inniskea Island, County Mayo had not been re-established today and the fact that bonfires have been seen nightly on the rocky island indicates something amiss. Two airplanes of the Irish Free State army today con tinued their search for bodies.

MANILA 'BOSS' STRIKES SNAG IN CAPITAL

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.
Editor of Universal Service.

Washington, Nov. 1.—Instead of an initial conference with the President of the United States, over the head of the Secretary of War, the anti-Wood expedition arrived in Washington from Manila to find that it must start off its activities today by a call at the War Department upon Secretary Davis

He is ex-officio supervisor of Philippines affairs at Washington

Any arrangements for a consultation with the President will be made through the channel of communication for which the law and custom provide. Here is a snag which was totally unexpected by the boss of the Manila oligarchy who heads this extraordinary expedition.

His representative at Washington dealt directly with the White House last month in seeking an appointment for Mr. Quezon and Mr. Osmena to discuss Philippine affairs with the President. Secretar. Davis was ignored and so was Colonel Hanford MacNider, acting Secretary of War.

All over the islands the word was flashed that President Coolidge had himself requested Quezon and Osmena to come to Washington and discuss not only the appointment of a successor to Governor-General Wood, but Philippines legislation in Congress.

One effect of the circulation of this false report was to make it appear that President Coolidge had lost confidence in acting Governor-General Gilmore and Secretary Davis and that the administration was disposed to substitute the boss of the Manila oligarchy and his lieutenant for the United States Senate as the President's adviser in the appointment of a Governor-General.

Appearances count for a great deal more in transpacific America than they do in continental United States. This particular report gave the people of the Philippines the impression that at least the attempt of the Manila oligarchy to overthrow the government for which the Jones law provides and substitute a government by the oligarchy was about to succeed.

No Windshield, No Wiper; "Fine!" Says Judge; "It's $5!"

West Hartford, Conn., Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Connecticut has a windshield wiper law. The law says that all motor vehicles except motorcycles must have windshield wipers. Albert J. Rubenstahl did not have a windshield wiper on his truck.

As a matter of fact there was no windshield on the truck to be wiped. There was the windshieldless truck and there was the law. The law won.

"Five dollars and costs" said Judge Richards H. Deming in town court.

GIRL IN SAFE CRACKING BAND

Information which is expected to lead to the rounding up of two separate bands of criminals who have been robbing safes and fur stores in Greater Boston recently, was received by Special Officers Granville Spinney and Robert Mooney of Station 1 today.

The safe crackers, five in number, and said to include two girls, were reported to be hiding in a Back Bay apartment, the location of which is known to the police.

The other band of so-called window smashers, are reported to have cached a lot of their loot, including many fur cuots, in a cottage in the vicinity of Wilmington.

1,000-GALLON STILL SEIZED IN LOWELL

Lowell, Nov. 1.—A 1,000-gallon still, which was reducing paint tacoxy into alcohol, operated by two men on twelve-hour shifts, was seized today when a Federal agent and local police raided a big concrete barn on Seneca street, near the Fair Grounds.

The raiders also seized 215 gallons of finished product, which sold at about $4 a gallon, and arrested the two alleged distillers, Joseph Parlato, forty-three, of Common street, Lawrence, and Bennie Magry, thirty-six, of Newbury street, Lawrence.

HOMER LORING QUITS B. & M. IN JANUARY

Homer Loring will depart the service of the Boston & Maine Railroad in January. His resignation will be accepted at the directors' meeting November 13.

These were indications today by Chairman Loring of the railroad executive board, who was retained three years ago to reorganize the road.

Chairman Loring declared that he considers his work about completed and that the pending matters should be cleaned up by January. One of his last acts will be to apply for listing of B. & M. common stock on the New York exchange.

Although it is said that the directors are reluctant to accept Chairman Loring's resignation, he insists that they do so and that the new officers of the road under Presi dent George Hannauer be permitted to go on with the work of rehabilitating the system. Chairman Loring also contends that the work now is a job calling for practical railroading without the interference of security holders.

DOG MAKES FOX DIZZY BY RACING AROUND TREE

Willimantic, Conn., Nov. 1. (AP).—Four boy hunters, Clarence and Sterling Mott and Lawrence and Lemuel Wadsworth boast a shepherd dog that catches foxes by making them dizzy.

While skunk hunting, Teddy, the dog, treed a small animal which proved to be a fox. Round and round the tree Teddy ran with the fox watching until finally it slipped and was down reeling around the ground.

EVERETT MAN INJURED AS SHIP BATTLES SEAS

New York, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—The liner Tadania was 36 hours late reaching port yesterday from Liverpool on account of heavy seas. Sunday the seas were so high one of the passengers, John Scully, 34, of No. 106 Third street, Everett, Mass., fell and broke his right leg. He was removed from the ship and taken in an ambulance to a private hospital.

TWO GET JAIL TERMS FOR HAVING ARMS IN AUTOS

Joseph Lombardi of Broadway, Chelsea, and James Brogna of Prince street, North End, were sentenced to six months each in the House of Correction today, when found guilty in Central Courthe former of carrying a revolver in an automobile and the latter of carrying a dirk knife in an auto. The LOVELORN by Beatrice Fairfax

A Great Love Serial by an Expert on Affairs of the Heart

Ann and Georgie Hastings, sisters, live together at Mrs. O'Leary's Dorchester boarding house. Ann, the elder, works in a South Boston factory and Georgie works in a Milk street insurance office. Ann is proud of her sister's good looks and charming manner. She thinks it would be a good thing if Georgie married Bill Warren, who has no money, but who is madly in love with Georgie. Bill invites Ann to lunch and shows her an engagement ring he has bought for Georgie. Jimmy McCormick, manager of one of the departments, an admirer of Ann, asks her out for the evening, but she refuses. On the way home she sees Georgie riding in a shining new car with a stranger. Later the car stops at Mrs. O'Leary's door.
(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 2.

YES, it certainly was Georgie in the small car. Georgie, with her quick smile, her chin tilted provokingly, her impudent, charming little gestures.

And the man in the car, he was leaning towards her, smiling, taking in her figure with cool, searching eyes. His hand strayed across his mouth as if to hide that smile, and he glanced up at Mrs. Leary's boarding house, as if to fix the number once and for all in his mind.

When Ann had reached them, Georgie, turning, saw her, and broke off in the middle of a sentence.

"Hello, Ann, darling!"

Ann's eyes went impersonally to the man in the car. About thirty, two. Rather good looking in an unpleasant way, with a small, carefully tended mustache, a soft felt hat jammed carelessly, at an angle, on his roundish head.

The eyes that gazed back at her were equally impersonal and scrutinizing. They seemed to measure her in a flash by some set standards of their own, to judge her, pass sentence, and forget her.

Ann knew the type; worldly, "hard boiled," craftily fond of the enjoyments that can be purchased, a cruel nature under a glamor of surface geniality.

The glance that had weighed Ann had found her wanting. Deliberately it passed on with more pleasantness and returned to Georgie.

Georgie was not introducing them. Ann knew why, and was angry. Georgie didn't know his name. A pickup—that was it. Ann had scolded Georgie before, made her promise Georgie would promise anything Why wouldn't she, when she forgot what she had promised the next moment? And Ann had felt like a prude, and been silent.

Only this time—this time she felt herself in the right. Men like this man in the roadster, sleek, lying, giving themselves the airs of riches on tiny incomes, selfish, dishonorable, working like wolves behind a mask.

Georgie thought she knew everything. She wouldn't listen—she might get herself in an unhappy tangle through her reckless, self-confidence.

Ann stood frowning, biting her lip. The man in the roadster shifted his gears.

"Always there?" he inquired pointedly to Georgie, ignoring Ann calmly. "At the same place, I mean? Well, tomorrow . . ."

His voice trailed off, was lost in the louder hum of the motor.

"Oh, yes, you'll see me there" Georgie taunted him, a challenge in every accent, promise and refusal mingled in her gay voice.

Strange how different people were. Ann couldn't talk like that, couldn't act like that. It came instinctively

MRS. NICHOLS IS BETTER TODAY

Mrs. Carrie M. Nichols, wife of the Mayor, who has been critically ill at the City Hospital since the birth of a son that died after incubation failed, gained a bit today in her fight for life according to the noon bulletin issued from City Hall.

The bulletin gave her temperature as 101.4, pulse 100 and respiration 28. This is the nearest to the normal respiration count that she has had since her illness began.

HAUNTED HOUSE IS BURNED

Fires, automobile thefts, shooting of children, and a "ghost walk" featured the celebration of Halloween in Massachusetts, according to reports received today.

At least 33 automobiles were stolen in the city proper during the night, but by daybreak about half had been recovered. The majority of the losses were reported from the Back Bay district.

TWO BOYS SHOT.

Two youthful Halloween celebrators in Springfield, Joseph Simino, 16, Bevier street, and Robert Donaldson, 13, of Beauchamp street, were wounded when Roland O Keeney, vice-president of the C. T. Kibbe Company of Springfield, discharged an ancient horse pistol when a group of boys refused to leave a grading job his company is doing near Van Horn Park, Springfield.

The "ghost walk" took place in Fitchburg, and as a result the famous "haunted house," a six-room abandoned cottage, property of Frank Russell of Winchendon, was destroyed by fire.

Clad in costume and bearing jack-o'-lanterns, a group of children, averaging 14 years of age, paraded along Highview street, and when near the "haunted house" someone suggested they enter it. They did so, but fled shrieking when one of their number, whose costume consisted principally of sheeting, rushed back to the main group from an exploration tour.

"HAUNTED HOUSE" BURNED.

A lighted jack-o'-lantern was thrown down on the floor, and in a few minutes the house was ablaze, with the ghost laid

Boston hosteries were well filled with revelers, particularly the night clubs, but possibly because of the presence of large numbers of police and Federal men disguised in evening clothes there were no arrests for violation of the liquor laws.

BOSTON WIDOW SUES A. W. NOONE FOR $25,000

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 1 (A.P.)—Suit has been filed here against Albert W. Noone, Peterboro manufacturer and Democratic candidate at various times for governor and U. S. senator, by Mrs. Ariel A. Noone of Boston, widow of William R. Noone, seeking to recover $25,000. There are two other defendants, Herbert A. Goodwin of Boston, executor of the William Noone estate, and the William R. Noone Company estate with offices in Boston and a plant in Peterboro. The plaintiff seeks to obtain a temporary injunction against the defendants from disposing of certain shares of stock of the William R. Noone Company and also of certain real estate.

COWBOY KIN OF DRAPER SEEKS SHARE IN WILL

William W. Draper of Kansas City, a cowboy and relative of former Governor Eben S. Draper, who is seeking a share of his mother's estate after an absence of 35 years, testified in Middlesex Probate Court today that he left home in 1882 and that he told his mother he would return when he made his fortune.

His mother, Mrs Ann Draper of Wayland, died in 1922, leaving her fortune to Marion and Harold Draper, grandchildren. The will was allowed on June 28, 1923, with no claim filed by William, who was not mentioned as a beneficiary.

"I told her I was going out into the world to support myself and that when I made a fortune I would come back," testified the claimant.

"I wrote my mother letters after I left home and the last I heard from home was in 1883, when I received a telegram from my stepfather telling me that Ernest, a brother, was born."

The claimant, who was the only witness called in his interest, was followed by his aunt, Miss Margaret R. Wellington. She testified that his mother mourned the disappearance of William and that effort was made to locate him through the aid of missionaries in the West.

Judge Leggat requested counsel for both sides to cite the law on the question of whether or not a man may be presumed to be dead after an absence of seven years.

Dalgnault's suit against the Roman Catholic Church leaders in this diocese for an accounting of certain Franco-American parish funds was thrown out of Superior Court here today by a final decree entered by presiding Justice Willard B. Dalgnault's recourse, which he says he will take, is an appeal to the State Supreme Court. He also announced that he would leave here for Rome on November 16.

MAN HELD IN ALBANY POOL CASE IS FREED

Rutland, Vt., Nov. 1 (A.P.)—Federal prosecution of the Albany basketball pool in this State came to an end today when Hiram R. Ainsworth, federal district attorney, announced the case against William F. French of Rutland, indicted last month for the operation of lottery tickets. French was discharged by Judge Harland B. Howe of the Federal District Court. Ainsworth said he took this action because he could not find sufficient grounds for prosecution

He added that he believed the pool had been selling 100,000 tickets a week at $1 a ticket and had disbursed about $20,000 a week in prizes in Vermont. The tickets which French transported, he said, were merely blank forms which did not become tickets within the meaning of the law until filled in by the consignee.

TABOO IS ON LOVE ILLS OF SINGER

Bucharest, Rumania, Nov. 1 (A.P.)—The sensation of Bucharest just now is neither the dynastic situation nor Premier Bratiano's activities in discouraging followers of Prince Carol, but is the appearance of Feodor Chaliapin and the "fabulous" prices charged to hear him.

Chaliapin, who made his scheduled appearances despite the Dynastic controversy, asked to be excused today from commenting on news of his divorce suit in Moscow. While the present Madame Chaliapin remained in the next room, the famous basso said to the reporter:

"In the interest of propriety it is better for all concerned to remain in an affair which is purely a family one and one into which the public ought not to be concerned.

"Just send to the American people my love and admiration and say that although I am actually separated from them by 5,000 miles I feel spiritually that I am very close to their hearts.

"I think I can entertain them much better by singing to them than by telling them merely of my domestic troubles."

After tonight's concert at Budapest, Chaliapin will go to Prague, Berlin, Amsterdam and Barcelona. Chaliapin's divorce action in Moscow was brought against Tolle Ignatievna to whom he was married in 1898. Friends of the singer said that they separated 21 years ago and that there was a second Madame Chaliapin.

MALDEN LIGHT DIVIDENDS ATTACKED

Although the public utilities commission has authorized a 6 per cent return, the Malden Electric Company paid a dividend of 16 per cent in 1926 based upon the par value of its stock Samuel H. Mildram, utility expert, said at a hearing in the State House today.

Appearing before the public utilities commission in behalf of customers of the company in Malden, Melrose, Medford and Everett, Mr Mildram pointed out the commission is on record as saying that 6 per cent is a fair return for money honestly and prudently invested in a public utility

He said that the surplus of $609 000 in 1926, increased during the year by $149 303, was unjustified The latter figure, he said, should have been distributed to the customers in the form of reduced rates. The proposed new schedule of rates, he said will not result in a decrease to consumers as claimed by the company

CONSTANT WIFE IS BARRYMORE TRIUMPH

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

AN inquisitive mind might be imprudently stirred into meditation on the general subject of wedlock by W. Somerset Maugham's "The Constant Wife," done so neatly at the Willbur last night, would have fared as well for the dramatist, or snapped up so greedily by the playgoer, if the destinies of the evening had been left to smaller talents than those brought forth by Ethel Barrymore and her faithful companions. As a finished, effective staging by O. F. Hagyle, who contented himself with a minor role in the cast, made of "Spell bound" a thing to be taken with a fixed stare and a busy mind.

When the over imaginative Ethel Underwood married Harold Carter (because he "understood" her), it was plain to be seen that all was far from well. Any woman in the audience could have warned her against such a man.

As the locale of the play is England, where justice is said to be swift and sure, Ethel Underwood brought the luckless Ethel within forty prison walls. There, condemned to death as an accomplice to the murder of a pigeon, tearstained face was turned to receive a ghastly sentence.

Penn and Harvard Great Old Rivals Last Game in '05

Spirit Remains, if Game Has Changed Old Crowds and New

By NICK FLATLEY

PENN AND HARVARD BRING BACK MEMORIES

HARVARD AND PENN.

What recollections and memories that combination stirs up for the old football fan. Harvard and Penn, famous and bitter rivals in the old days when the grid game was a he-man's game, as the vets put it. Those days when the football here let his hair grow until he looked like a Sutherland sister. Those days when mayhem and slugging were part of the racket.

No rules to save life and limb had been put on the books. The young man carrying the ball had very little protection. His own teammates pulled and pushed and tugged him along. The enemy jumped on his prostrate form and tried to bury his writhing body in the turf.

The ball wasn't down until the ball had been permanently stopped. The carrier lost ears and limbs occasionally, in the course of a real hot scrimmage, but that was to be expected. On many an occasion a runner tackled twenty yards from the goal line would be dragged and hauled across by his own pals.

Or he might be picked up bodily by the enemy and escorted back on a long journey until the concerted pressure of two whole teams stopped retrogression. There were no forward passes in those days. The game was a matter of sheer strength and brute force.

Nick Flatley

It was rough, and the Penn-Harvard games were a bit rougher than most. Injuries were so numerous that the first reformers began to wail faintly in the land, and the rivalry was ended for the general good of the physical being of the young men who were footballing and taking up college as a necessary side line.

Those were the days of the man-crushing wedge, when half a dozen giants, massed back of the line, picked some hostile spot and proceeded to smack the occupant into the middle of next week. That was the first thing legislated out of the game when the cry against brutality was heard. And that reform marked the beginning of the changed and more open game we now have with us once in a while.

IF ANCIENT FOOTBALL WAS AS TOUGH AS THE VETS TRY TO MAKE OUT, THERE COULDN'T BE ANY VETS LEFT TO TELL ABOUT IT.

The vet he laughs with scornful pice
When some big kid is playing.
Then tells how rough it used to be
Way back, when he was young.

RED AND BLUE AND THE OLD "GUARDS BACK"

SOMEWHERE in the dim recesses of memory we find a picture of a football game at Soldiers Field. An enormous crowd of 14,000 fans in the old wooden stands. Kids, we found it easy to crash the gates. Pennsylvania and Harvard. The famous Red and Blue team, with its illustrious guards back formation.

Truxton Hare and McCracken, if memory isn't sour, were two huge man mountains, who stepped back out of the line on Penn offensive. Taking a flying start five yards back, they hit the enemy line and went through like steam rollers invading haystacks. And the backs sifted into the gaps and over the wreckage.

These fabled giants looked five times as big as any Harvard Hercules, and the wonder is no team could stand against them. The scars of that game is long since forgotten. We could look it up, but that would be getting a disturbing reminder of the years that have flitted.

But the picture of the two elephantine athletes bulling ahead stirks. One was close to the game of football, especially if one was heading the law, and parking in the heaped straw along the sidelines, where the old fashioned cop never felt constrained to look.

Now Harvard and Penn will play to 80,000 people. The boys perched on the rim of the heavens will be half a mile away from the game. A million dollars will be spent on this one fray, more than used to be passed around in a couple of the old seasons.

There will be no man killing mass plays. Football has changed. Only the spirit remains. There is PLENTY of that.

Penn should be good on the right side. Reminiscing always makes us that way.

PENN WON LAST GAME AFTER BITTER STRUGGLE

HARVARD and Penn decided to call off their annual mutual murder after a wild old game in 1905. Some very famous football heroes were mixed up in that final war. Penn won, scoring two touchdowns to the Crimson one, but it went on the books as a great game.

Bob Torrey, the Quaker captain, was All-America center for two years. Bill Hollenback and Bob Folwell, famous later as coaches, were in the backfield. Vince Stevenson, one of the greatest of all quarterbacks, was the field general, and Hunter Scarlett, end of undying fame, was in there.

Harvard had Dan Hurley, Reggie Foster and big Lockwood, whose names come up always when past Crimson glory is being discussed. The huge Karl Brill, who used to come back out of the Harvard line to carry the ball, hammered through for the Harvard score.

Some 23,000 fans saw that game, a crowd that established a new record for Pennsylvania attendances. The winning touchdown came near the end of the second half, and Harvard's wild efforts to come back were wrecked when Lockwood, who teamed up with Brill in a fine whanging tandem formation, was carried hurt off the field.

Spider Kelly, Ring Hero, Dead

Rochester, Minn., Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Death today tolled off the final count for Spider Kelly, once an outstanding contender for the lightweight boxing championship. Ending a fight of several years against disease, Spider died from a blood clot on the brain, after an operation for mastoid trouble. He was 56 years old.

Kelly, whose true name was James Patrick Curtin came here ten days ago from Tucson, Arizona, where he had lived several years seeking to regain his health. His body will be sent to San Francisco for burial.

Fights that won Kelly fame included a 15-round bout with the then champion Joe Gans in New York, when the Spider gained a draw, although many critics gave him an edge. Gans then was at the height of his career.

A number of Kelly's fights were for 10 rounds and he often had a gruelling bout every month.

TWO NIFTY FORWARD PASSES, TOSSED BY SHARPSHOOTING AL WESTON, Gave the Boston College Eagles a touchdown that sewed up the Fordham game. Here we have little Pat Creedon, of Brockton, snuggling the first one to his chest, just as he skids off the field at the seven-yard line. Then Weston tossed to Murphy, and there was your old ball game. The Eagles were slow to start, but now they're on their way.

MEASURE PASSES BY 6-1 VOTE

Boston Evening American Campaign Meets With Success in First Council Skirmish

By JOE CASHMAN

The committee on finance of the Boston City Council reported favorably on Councillor John F. Dowd's order calling for $250,000 for a municipal stadium, at the regular weekly meeting of the body.

The vote was six to one in favor of the Roxbury mans measure, Councilor Horace Guild of Jamaica Plain was the sole objector on the committee other members of which are Council men William G. Lynch of south Boston Thomas H. Green of Charlestown, George F. Gilbody of Dorchester, Henry Parkman, Jr., of the Back Bay, Charles G. Keene of West Roxbury, and John F. Dowd of Roxbury, sponsoner of the order.

Because of the objection of Mr. Guild, who does not believe that spectators should be allowed to attend any inter-collegiate or interscholastic athletic events, and who, in his minority report referred to the Harvard Stadium as "Harvard's folly" the Dowd order was automatically referred to the executive committee.

The order will be acted upon sometime in the next two weeks The order was introduced by Councillor Dowd as a result of the Boston Evening American's campaign for a centrally-located athletic plant for the pupils of intown high schools.

BARNARD IS SATISFACTORY TO LANDIS

Chicago, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Due consideration has been given to the appointments of Federal Commissioner K. M. Landis in choosing the new president of the American League, it was understood today. The commissioner is understood to be well pleased with E. S. Barnard now head of the Cleveland club, and the reported choice of the American League directors who meet here tomorrow to pick Ban Johnson's successor.

After his rows with Johnson, ended in his resignation as baseball commissioner, Landis put no stress to the advisory committee of the major leagues, composed of John and President Heydler of the National League, combination to World Series and the other affairs under his jurisdiction without consulting them.

Barnard has virtually completed the deal to turn the baseball league with which he has been connected for twenty-four years over to Harold Grimm and his associates. An announcement of the purchase is expected to accompany the news of Barnard's resignation to the presidency of the league.

After twenty-three years of service in the American League, Cobb has decided to hang up his spiked shoes for good. Cobb's informal announcement of his retirement was made here yesterday. Official announcement, however, must come from the office of Connie Mack.

Slattery is recognized as champion by the National Boxing Commission and Loughran by the New York Commission.

BELGIAN HEAVYWEIGHT TO BOX ARTHUR DE KUH

New York, Nov. 1 (I.N.S.)—Cyclone Jack Humbeeck, Belgian heavyweight champion, today was definitely signed to take a hand in the American heavyweight elimination program. Cable negotiations have been completed calling for a ten-round match between Humbeeck and Arthur De Kuh, Italian, on Nov. 21. Humbeeck will arrive in this country Nov. 14.

Harvard in Fog Over Penn's Style of Play

For the first time in the history of modern football, Harvard is laboring under a new problem, that of preparing its eleven with complete ignorance of the style of attack employed by its coming adversary.

By a ridiculous non-scouting agreement Harvard and Penn will enter Franklin Field, at Philadelphia, relying mainly on their respective offense.

The Harvard coaches to a man are against the new ruling. As one coach puts it: "It is like a dying man being put to eat the black bread or die." That expresses the attitude of the Crimson instructors perfectly. The present agreement was the longest of the athletic picture. When the teams line up tomorrow it would be impossible to tell which coach would be the most surprised. Each will be equally in the dark as to what the other will do.

Trainer Eddie Farrell's report that every man will be available for service in the Harvard ranks is a great aid to Harvard. Farrell has every reason to look forward to a successful season, but the report to Harvard followers and a note of regret that the years the present Harvard team will be the last group of that football star which can point at the field as their peak.

PRINCETON FACES BIG TEST

Undefeated Tigers Must Be at Best to Beat Ohio State Saturday

By MALCOLM ROY
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Nov. 1.—Serious business is ahead for the Princeton Tiger. Under the old order of things, the Princetonians would be entertaining Harvard at the Palmer Stadium this week-end, and the Tiger would be licking his chops in gleeful anticipation, but the Big Three is no more, and instead of the Crimson eleven the Tiger will tackle the enigmatic Ohio State team at Old Nassau.

Ohio State presents the one big question mark in the Princeton season so far.

On past records Princeton appears to be headed logically and inevitably toward a game with Yale, which promises to be an epic, just only to the long history between these two, but also in the history of football for this particular season. Just as the Army and Navy drew apart last year and in game after game gave indubitable evidence that their big final battle would be the climactic game of the season, so Yale and Princeton have gone their separate ways this year, demonstrating that they are just about the best of the lot, if not the very best, and that when they meet in the Bowl on November 12 considerably more than their ancient rivalry will be at issue.

This is where Ohio State steps into Princeton's ride of the picture. Apart from the game with Cornell a week ago, in which the Tigers gave a superb exhibition of versatile offensive strength and of powerful defensive strategy, Princeton had not been face to face with no really high class opposition that season.

Ohio State has everything to gain and nothing to lose against Princeton, has been through a series of rough and tumble battles with Michigan, Northwestern and Chicago and, although considerably scarred and worn, has its fighting spirit intact and a determination to make good in the eyes of the football world at his expense of the Tiger.

After it had been defeated by Michigan by the overwhelming margin of three touchdowns, following a setback at the hands of Northwestern, Ohio State appeared to be headed down and going fast. But the team found itself against Chicago and handed the Midway eleven its first defeat in a Conference game this season, thus thus re-established itself, Ohio State is primed for Princeton.

The Tigers have had no such opposition through the run of the season so that through which Dillon has battled its way to the top, as they need the Ohio State fight. The team is admittedly in this Princeton game, but it needs the fire of another hard battle to bring it out and temper it for the sort of game it must play against the Elis.

Walker and McTigue in Ring Battle Tonight

Chicago, Nov. 1 (A.P.).—Only an Irish referee is needed to make an all-Celtic affair of the 10-round battle tonight between Mike McTigue and Mickey Walker, both Irish and each with a manager tracing his ancestry to the Emerald Isle, too.

Walker, the present wearer of the middleweight crown, will weigh about 167 pounds to 174 for McTigue, who used to be champion of the light heavyweights. Both boys have their eyes on the 175-pound title.

Roberto Saguero, the Havana light heavyweight, who has won his last two bouts here by knockouts, is matched with Benny Bonn of Buffalo in the 10-round semi-final.

THOSE BIG BLUE BACKS GRAB HOSTILE PASSES

Inside Golf

By Chester Horton

Take tennis, for instance, to compare with golf. In tennis the player must pay attention to his own strokes and at the same time endeavor to employ a strategy calculated to upset the other fellow's game. Same thing with boxing, and with baseball pitching. The "change of pace" employed by a pastime in golf. In golf the player must try to make his clubs do just what the opponent least expects them to do. In other words, his brain must be as busy as his hands all the time. In golf, I think, there is even a still greater demand for headwork than is called for in any other sport. Many players defeat themselves year after year, round after round, because of their lack of headwork, because in the game back of headwork has such an individual result. You don't play golf with the hands alone.

"Cav" Says:

B. C.'s Great 1920 Team Gave Him More Satisfaction Than Any Team He Ever Coached

By MAJOR FRANK W. CAVANAUGH
Head Football Coach at Fordham University
Former Head Coach Boston College

EVERY man who has coached for any length of time has had one team that came closer to his ideal of team play than any other, and the thought of that combination is always fresh in his memory.

He may possibly have had more successful teams under his guidance, but this team had qualities that made it the remembered one, whether it finished the season undefeated or not.

I have been coaching almost twenty-seven years, and have seen many great teams play, some of which I had the honor of coaching, some developed by others but I got more satisfaction and pleasure out of working with the members of the Boston College team of 1920, than any I ever coached or ever expect to coach.

That didn't lose a game and were rated by all experts as being one of the best teams in the country, but it is not for their record alone that I remember them.

There is one feature, apart from their prowess as players, that I would like to emphasize. There never was the slightest trace of internal dissension among any of the members.

On the contrary, the spirit of good fellowship and the will to win reigned in them to the exclusion of bickerings or petty jealousies of all kinds.

Quipstrick, one of the backfield, had been captain during the preceding year, but none worked more valiantly than Jimmy under the 1920 captain, Luke Urban.

There never was the slightest attempt of any player to show off or so playing to the crowd; as far as they were concerned, the stadiums they played in were empty.

THE whole squad was so imbued with a desire to win that they were always in condition, never took unnecessary chances, and yet knew how to press their play when more power was needed.

They knew, without showing it, that they were a championship combination, and every man wanted to be on the team all through the season, so there was none of the usual threatening by the coach to keep them up in their scholastic standing.

They were so willing to try that it was a pleasure to be with them.

The team was liberally equipped with football sense. I have seen many very good teams that had great success without showing any signs of football apparitions. It is a sort of sixth sense that distinguishes men of the type of Stuhldreher, Morrison, Koehler and the rest of the crowd.

The following example will illustrate the type of work that is real evidence of football brains.

IN the Yale game of 1920 one of the Yale backs had started on a swinging end run. Just as he was about to cut back, he fumbled.

As the leather rolled on the turf, Roderick, the Boston College full back, and Urban, the captain and end, raced for it. Urban, out of the corner of his eye, noticed a Yale man about the same distance from the ball as the Boston pair.

Without a moment's hesitation, and with a fine display of quick thinking and unselfishness, Urban threw himself at the Blue player's feet, dumping him neatly, while Roderick raced over the goal line for a touchdown.

THERE were many other incidents of a like character, though not so sensational, which showed the desire to co-operate for the good of the team, coupled with the ability to think and act fast.

It was this last quality—the ability to analyze a situation and act upon the diagnosis—that set apart the Boston College team of 1920 as one of the greatest.

ANDY BROWN ON MAT CARD

Andy Brown, Lithuanian wrestler, who meets Sam Skoraky in a finish bout at the Grand Opera House Thursday night, is just a few pounds short of the weight Hackenschmidt carried when he was at his best.

Like Hackenschmidt he believes he is plenty large enough to beat any man living. He is about the fastest big fellow seen in action in many days.

Jovanni Vargarini Italian sensation will make his second Boston appearance here meeting Jack Albright in a one fall contest and from all reports Jack will make the going tough for the big Italian.

Jack Odell who made such a good showing with Stanley Stasiu last week will open the show with a one fall match with Ivan Lilow the sensational Russian wrestler.

TERRIERS USE FULL POWER THIS WEEK

Real practice for the game with Providence at Tufts Oval Saturday, starts today at Riverside, Boston University's football training grounds.

Injuries have been so reduced that the coaches can give the men real workouts without fearing any more casualties.

The squad is in good shape and the coaches may present the full strength of the team for the first time since the Army game.

With Keyes off the shelf every regular will be available. Despite the fact that the team is in good shape, it is not expected that Coaches Brown and Robinson will allow their first eleven to play long Saturday.

Woman to Swim Gibraltar Straits

London, Nov. 1 — Mercedes Gleitze, young British woman who swam the channel four weeks ago and afterwards attempted a "round-the-island swim," following the hoax perpetrated by Dr. Dorothy Logan announced today she will attempt to swim the straits of Gibraltar in December.

Lord Lonsdale that is Sir Lonsdale Cain is sponsoring the attempt. The distance is 27 miles and the current rents are tricky. The straits have never been completed by a swimmer.

Everett School Board Plans Break With Malden

The Malden-Everett controversy still rages.

The Everett School Committee is in favor of severing athletic relations with Malden in all branches of sports.

Malden in refusing to play football at Everett on November 12, holds that if hoped the decision would not result in Everett severing athletic relations.

The Everett School Committee, however, says that unless Malden plays at Everett this year, the two schools will not meet again in athletics.

Malden is negotiating for a game with Rutland, Vt., High at the Pearl street stadium on Nov. 12.

The Everett School Committee has also settled the DiMatt case. It voted that the evidence in the case is plain that Di Matt is over age, and that the stand taken by Headmaster Rockwood in the case is correct.

CREEDON AND WESTON HURT

Boston College took a dose of its medicine last week and found out for the first time how it felt to be on the receiving end of the Fordham line. As a result Dr. Jim Gordon, B. C. grid physician, has our sympathy on his medicine list and is using a good deal of liniment in the Eagle dressing room.

Coach Jack Blaik has lost the ninth man he operated in New York over the week-end. He has forgotten R. C. against victory over Carlisle, Tufts and Fordham and has resumed a sergeant attitude.

Boston College starts what may prove a scrimmage pick this week end in Harry Gardner at Manhattan, the former Notre Dame star is the most veteran squad [illegible] ... of a bevy that rates with the best in the country.

At Weston and Paddy Creedon, Boston College backfield men are hurt and may not be able to play against Villanova. Weston limped through two periods of the Fordham game with his ribs badly battered.

Weston, about as game as they come, was the hero of Boston College's win. He must have been suffering a good deal but refused to quit. Trainer Frank Somers was the one to notice Weston's injury in the locker rooms after the fray. He treated the bruised ribs and advised Weston to take it easy until Thursday of this week.

Paddy Creedon, after tearing Fordhams' line to pieces, was carried from the field, thought to be suffering from a broken leg. Creedon was writhing in pain and holding his left leg limp.

But, luckily for the future of B. C. on the gridiron, Creedon's pain was caused not from a broken limb, but a badly wrenched ankle. He is limping today and may be forced to watch the Villanova combat from the bench next Saturday.

Higgins and Davenutt, who were knocked out, are still a bit shaken up but will be fit for the Pennsylvania game at the end of the week. Boston College's second team, [illegible] is over run with minor injuries and bruises which are holding Coach Daley back in his driving for the coming game.

It is thought, however, that Creedon will be the only one missing from B. C.'s first team, and Tom Smith's hand is now strong enough to allow his playing against Villanova.

MR. BOSTON
By Jack Conway

"BROADWAY isn't the most ideal spot to train for an important heavyweight battle, according to a notice which Jack Sharkey has served on Tex Rickard," piped Mr. Boston today as he ferried into the sporting department. Recipes That Help in Apple Week

By MARTHA LEE

COMES now the week that we set apart for obeisance to the succulent apple. October 31 to November 6 is the National Apple Week with the apt slogan, "An Apple A Napple."

It has become a fixed national event, and through out the United States apples will be featured on the menus of hotels, restaurants, railroad dining cars and in millions of homes of rich and poor alike.

Remember the attractive window displays of the various fruit stores in full fruit will remind the passer-by of National Apple Week and the good old adage, little but wise. An Apple a Day Keeps the Doctor Away.

Here are a few recipes that I know you will enjoy, as well as the housewife, as we enter the early weeks of the season.

Apple Pudding—Cut a chopped pint of soft bread crumbs, ½ cup sugar, 1 lemon rind and juice, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ cup water.

Melt the butter and add the crumbs to it. Grate the lemon rind [illegible] Mix together ½ of the crumbs, ½ of the sugar and all the spices. Pare and slice the apples. Put over this a layer of the remainder of the crumbs, then the remainder of the apples and the sugar and spices. Squeeze the lemon juice over this and add the water and put the rest of the crumbs on the top.

Cover closely and cook for 45 minutes in the oven. Uncover, brown quickly. To be eaten plain or with sweetened cream. Cold cream may be used in place of cream.

Apple Pie—Line a medium size pie plate with pastry. Fill with sliced apples. Sprinkle over the apples ½ cup sugar, 1 or 2 tablespoons water, if apples are not juicy. Cover with pastry and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 minutes or until apples are tender.

Apple Sauce—Pare, core and slice the apples. Put in a saucepan with a little water. Cook slowly until tender. Add sugar to taste. Cook 5 minutes longer. Serve cold.

Apple Fritters—Sift together 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar. Add 1 egg, well beaten, ½ cup milk and 1 tablespoon melted butter. Mix well. Pare and core 3 apples and cut in slices ¼ inch thick. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Dip in batter and fry in deep fat (375 degrees F.) until brown. Drain on soft paper. Sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve hot with lemon sauce.

Apple and Quince Preserve—1 peck apples, ½ peck pears, ½ peck sweet quinces.

Wash quinces and apples. Put in preserving kettle in alternate layers and cover with cold water. Cook slowly until fruit is tender. Drain off the liquid and to each pint add 1 pound sugar. Boil 10 minutes. Add the drained fruit and boil until a clear syrup. Add the juice of 1 lemon. Put fruit in glass jars and fill with the syrup. Seal.

Apple Jelly—Wash and cut apples in quarters. Cover with cold water and cook until soft. Strain through a jelly bag. Measure juice and allow ¾ cup sugar to each cup juice. Boil juice rapidly 20 minutes. Add sugar and boil 5 minutes longer. Pour into glasses and cover with paraffin.

Evils of Cocaine Habit

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association

THE Harrison act has very properly placed the dispensing of cocaine under the severest of restrictions. Its enslaving or habit-forming power is such as to make its indiscriminate use extremely dangerous to the individual.

Nothing but its great ideal [illegible] usefulness as a local anaesthetic justifies its continued use in medicine.

Cocaine as a valuable drug is extracted from the coca plant which grows in South America. The early Spanish explorers recorded that the natives considered it a sacred plant, using it at all religious ceremonies, and they still use it as an indispensable sensual and reviving agent. They generally chew the leaves, as the natives in eastern Asia chew betel nuts.

Coming down, it missed Edison's nose by a hair and plunged through a two-inch plank. Only Edison's agility saved him from a serious accident.

Mimicry is one of the great inventor's pet diversions. One cold Winter morning he entered his office imitating a threadbare "dandy" of the time. With an imaginary cane under his arm and drawing on an imaginary pair of tattered gloves, he sauntered across the floor, a self-satisfied smirk on his face.

A favorite bit of make-believe, out of which Edison gets a real "kick," is to enter his own legal department, and, with great humility, apply for a job as an inventor. At other times he may greet a dignified individual by the name of James with "Hully gee, Chimmy, when d'id youse blow in?"

Better Mornings via Breakfasts That "Stand By" You

Quaker Oats Urged Widely by Authorities

FOREMOST educators, editors as well as leading business institutions like Lee Electric Company, now are widely urging breakfasts that "stand by" as an important aid to success.

That's because it is now known that over 70% of the day's important work, in offices, stores, etc., falls into the four morning hours—the hours from 8:30 to 12:30.

In most American schools, including Princeton, Yale, most State Universities and some 2,000 grade schools throughout the country, 80% of the important classes are held before luncheon.

Thus, largely on expert advice, millions now start days with Quaker Oats—food that "stands by" one through the morning.

Excellently balanced in protein, carbohydrates, minerals and the important Vitamine B, this delicious food is ideal for banishing listless mornings.

Today get Quick Quaker that cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes or regular Quaker Oats at grocer's.

Appeals for Some Unexcited Thinking About the Princeton Change

AMONG members of the board of trustees both David B. Jones and Ole brother, Thomas D. Jones, who became a trustee in 1903, were firm supporters of Wilson throughout his life. Cyrus H. McCormick, C. C. Cuyler and Edward W. Sheldon, I have noted, could be counted upon and the other years M. Taylor Pyne, also a graduate of Princeton and one of the generous supporters of the university, was Wilson's devoted friend.

As a matter of fact Wilson was kept throughout by those trustees who understood best what he was trying, patiently and with a forbearance of remarkable. No man was ever subjected to more friendships than Woodrow Wilson!

But the way of the man of vision is hard, whether he be a crusader with a new plan, an inventor with a new telescope or a poet with a new message.

Andrew C. Imbrie, a new member since 1911 with friends at the university, and sent Wilson a long letter of questions on July 24, 1907. They were intelligent and penetrating, showing quite thoroughly to the needs of the matter and drawing out Wilson's thoughts on it in an admirable way.

Wilson's reply was so complete, so definite, that it left no doubt as to the thoroughness of his thinking upon the subject, but that very fact

Wilson After Quality and Not Quantity at Princeton

"I suppose there has not been a word of complimentary letters" during the time with regard to our work at Princeton, but I cannot help feeling confident that in the long run the tide will set in that direction," he wrote in a letter to J. M. Bennett, Jr. "It, of course, hits us hard to deprive the men most favored of their present club life at college, and I am not wonder that their affection for the clubs at first governs their judgment. It is very delightful to receive such letters as this of yours, and I thank you for it most cordially."

The fact was that the Princeton following, intensely as it admired Wilson, much as it appreciated what he had already done, clearly as it perceived the evils he was seeking to cure, was a little out of breath. Wilson was assuming a discipline of mind, a devotion to purpose equal to his own. He had already asked much of his more or less easy-going little world. He had pegged up the requirements of scholarship he was demanding in unprecedented amount of work of students, and indeed of faculty and trustees.

Men hate the toil of thought, and he was demanding thought beyond anything else. Princeton was losing its reputation as a pleasant place of social retirement with an intellectual background. Wealthy students from rich or influential families—almost families!—forced to meet the

Faced Every Ancient Foe of Educational Progress

If some of Wilson's best friends who believed utterly that he was right even hesitant about pressing the matter too hard—"We dearly love Woodrow Wilson, but he does drive you to it"—his opponents were attacking his plans without gloves. "It is a fatal line of opposition, as ancient as the struggle of the innovator to correct the evils of society, at once developed."

First, the proposed remedy in itself was all wrong.

Second, the methods of the reformer were all wrong.

One of the earliest and strongest attacks came from those who believed that the private property rights and privileges of the clubs were sacred—superior even to what Wilson called the "primary purpose of the university."

Probably the deepest opposition of all came from those who resented what they considered an attempt to dictate how students "should arrange their social lives." As crudely put, "no one can make a gentleman a scholar with a muscler." And Wilson argued patiently but un avail:

"The primary object that the board has in view is not social, but academic. It is not to create clubs. The object is academic and intellectual. We are seeking the organization best suited to the intellectual development of the university, its development as a place of serious study. I should be distressed to have the plan regarded as in any sense an attack on the clubs. It would have been proposed, even if there had been no clubs, as a desirable method of drawing the undergraduates together in an academic organization."

In short, in his single-minded devotion to what he considered the prime purpose of a university—the "things of the mind," the "discipline of the spirit"—Wilson found himself facing every ancient bogey of progress; vested property rights, ceremonial traditions, social privileges. He was learning fast in the little world of the university—lessons he needed in preparation for

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your crowning charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture. You can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for only 75 cents, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

to George. No wonder men liked her with her cheerfulness, her charming impertinence, her promise of a chase and an adventure!

The man in the car with a final, careless nod had gone George's face had lost its fresh, youthful vivacity —George's looks were for men. She could be serious enough, natural enough, to women—even her sister.

And her face was now a little defiant. As if expecting Ann to scold her or be cross she had already assumed a defensive attitude.

She ran up the stairs, burst open the door, so that Ann had no time to say anything. But what was there to say? George knew Ann disapproved, and George resented Ann's interference.

But though she resented it, perhaps she secretly understood it, even felt a little guilty. When Ann reached their room on the third floor, George was prepared to be cool. Her hat was flung on the top of the dresser. The wide bed, with its faded, cream-colored counterpane, the carpet from which the nap had worn, the undersized closet—these were all so familiar, so depressing.

No wonder George sought an escape from the life that these represented. With her youth, her high spirits, how could she be blamed from wanting those pleasures which could be scattered by good-looking, sleek men with roadsters and enough time with to show off?

Let she must be talked to, she must be scolded, it would never do to let her have her own head. And could have over the last three years, responding once more to mother's death, the quiet, Fall dusk when the doctor and the nurse left the sick room, and she had been

Faculty Found Itself Split Into Warring Factions

With the coming of the Fall term in 1907 the faculty found itself divided into strongly antagonistic factions. Each group began to hold meetings, discuss plans of action. The group which supported Wilson was led by Professors Daniels, Ormond, Vreeland, Elliott and Axson. Dean Fine was the backbone of the movement. That opposed to Wilson was led by Dr Henry van Dyke, Dean West and, presently, by Wilson's most intimate friend, Professor Hibben.

Van Dyke was prompt and outright in his opposition.

"I feel bound to tell you, personally, that my profound regret at hearing that the essential ideas of the plan of residential quads for Princeton must be understood as already adopted. It is the essential idea that makes the radical change—a change which seems to me full of the gravest peril to the life and unity of Princeton," he wrote to Wilson.

A few days later Van Dyke wrote an article condemning the scheme. His opposition was based not upon expediency, but upon contrary judgment as to the results that would accrue and the absence of need for such a reorganization. It was based on sound conviction, and while the president could not accept his reasoning, he respected Van Dyke's judgment in the matter.

West might be expected to be of the opposition, for the quad plan, if carried through, was likely to interfere with the plans for the graduate college. But West did not take the outright stand of Van Dyke. He charged his friends to be calm. In a letter to Wilson he said:

"The sweeping and unexpected action of the board of trustees regarding the residential reorganization of our students—an action taken at your instance and with out allowing an opportunity beforehand for hearing the opinions of the faculty or of other persons properly interested and deeply concerned—has so disheartened many that I have been unable to think of anything else or to address myself to the duties of every day at the troubles ahead of us.

"You have been president for five eventful years of [illegible] and every measure of your administration has had my unwavering adhesion and best efforts—even to the point of sending me to the hospital. I have served Princeton and your administration for something more than salary and do not [illegible] the spirit of Princeton is to be killed, I have little interest in the details of the funeral."

Replies to the Letter Written by Dean West

While no man consulted the faculty less in advance regarding his plans than Dean West, his letter responded in a strong feeling engendered. Wilson replied immediately, July 11, 1907:

"I have just received your letter of the 10th and have read it with deep distress. I am sorry, very sorry, that you did not call Princeton to me before I left Princeton. It is only in conversations that misconceptions so deep as yours can be removed.

"If I can assure you that you are entirely mistaken in saying, or in supposing, 'unconstrained discussion of the essentials of the plan by the faculty has now made it utterly impossible,' and that if you had waited, with some confidence in my character, until the autumn, you would have seen how [illegible] and grounded such a statement is. Certainly there is no [illegible] or purpose, or possibility, of killing the spirit of Princeton. I really cannot imagine what you mean. You must be speaking out of some extraordinary misconception of the whole plan and purpose.

"The plan involves so many elements which lie within the province and authority of the board alone that it seemed to me [illegible] advise that it should first receive the sanction of the trustees. No one who candidly considers its whole scope and purpose can fail to see that. But the board intended, as I of course did, to [illegible] and it is to [illegible] that I have spent [illegible] and [illegible] into a new light."

How the whole country came to be interested in Woodrow Wilson's Princeton controversies will be shown in tomorrow's chapter.

Fads and Fashions

In the Nick of Time—Appears the little locket watches that have a two-fold destiny. Such a watch, when worn upon a thin platinum chain about the neck, resembles a fat pendant, which quickly opens when the time is desired. When not being worn, such a watch can serve as a miniature traveling clock, for it is constructed with an easel-back arrangement.

Rough and Ready—Are the rough Scotch tweed pouch bags that so readily accompany the tweed sports suits and hats now being worn by the best tailored girls and young matrons. Mounted upon gilded metal frames, these swagger handbags are very spacious, large enough to accommodate the many small articles the average woman likes to carry about with her.

Borrowing Brightness from their silver kid piping both gloves and handbags of black antelope have stylish distinctions. These are of the one-clasp style, with narrow kid piping about the top. The same dainty piping trims the large envelope purse that is carried in those well-gloved hands.

Being named as a Cat's Paw naturally causes indignation, but being named "kitten's ear" designates stylish felt as a highly luxurious medium for creating many of the smartest hats of the season. The most stunning models tightly frame the face—in this type of hat those with the eyebrow curve, which describes an upward point in the centre front, are very much in vogue.

FRISBY HAS PLAN TO HELP THE POOR

ONE of the many colored slides used by Mister Frisby in his lecture, "Quaint Old Spanish Customs," which he has offered to give to the poor. A small admission charge will be made to cover the cost of operating his magic lantern, pay for his laundry and settle the temporary alimony controversy.

While he has never traveled in Spain, Mister Frisby spent several years cutting out references to Spain and the Spaniards when he was a member of the Pennsylvania Board of Motion Picture Censorship.

Mister Frisby would like to have it understood that in case he fails to arrive at the lecture hall, due to a previous engagement, the money can be placed in envelopes and dropped into the barrel provided for that purpose.

Los Angeles Civil Service Commission will only make police lieutenants out of applicants who are familiar with classic literature, the history of religion and higher mathematics.

Anyone anxious to become a police lieutenant should be able to answer the following questions—

1. If a burglar refuses to take off sister-in-law, an income tax collector and the baby and then sets fire to his house, what author was born in Boston on April 20, 1813?
2. If a burglar refuses to take off his shoes in the presence of ladies what does the Constitution say about Bartolommio Prignani and the Church Council of Terracina?
   a. And how?
3. If a homicide, while being searched for concealed weapons, goes into a soft shoe dance, what is the viscosity of friction between particles moving to a fixed parallel, if R is the tangential and X-Y and W-Z represents the surface area?
   a. Is it reasonable?

• • •

After answering these questions, the applicant should be reprimanded and sent to bed without his grog.

SMART SAYINGS OF CLEVER CHILDREN

"What are you doing here?" demanded the irate farmer of the boy he had surprised in his chestnut tree.

FARMER WOMAN 60 IN OKLAHOMA

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Because It Gave Her Health and Strength

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing.

They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a houseful of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and tired.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 387, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 136 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Are you on the Sunlit Road to Golden Health?

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY---BY JOHN P. MEDBURY

THIS is the first of the month and millions of porches all over the country will soon be covered with literature.

THOUSANDS of married men have already gone into nervous prostration. They're suffering from the after effects of a charge account.

ONE man says his wife ran up so many bills that she wore out three letter carriers.

SHE finally thought of a clever plan to keep the statements from reaching her husband. She shot the postman.

THE jury acquitted her when they found out that the poor fellow was going to move to Chicago anyway.

ANYBODY who buys a ticket to Illinois is guilty of premeditated suicide.

ONE mercantile concern has started to put shock absorbers on all their bills.

THEY sprinkle them with ether and pour laughing gas in the envelopes.

SOME stores send out statements each week and the customers have to worry fifty-two times a year.

BUT one fit in every thirty days is enough for anybody.

ONE fellow says he's only two bills away from the poor house.

HE went out of his mind last month and hasn't returned yet.

IT'S a good thing he went crazy. He needed the rest.

IT'S the first vacation he's had in ten years.

HE hasn't enough money to travel himself, but his mind is wandering.

HE wants to go out West, where men are men and women do all the arguing with collectors.

THE only chimes he's heard since he was married is the door bell.

HE has corns on his back from hiding under sofas.

AMERICA is a progressive nation. For years we've had safe and sane Fourths; but what we need now is a painless First.

Chapped lips and face

No amount of cosmetics can make harsh, dry, withered-looking lips and face appear attractive. But a few touches of Resinol Ointment will usually end the discomfort and restore the natural smoothness and velvety softness of the skin.

Prescribed by doctors for over thirty years, in treating skin disorders, Resinol is now being used by daily increasing numbers of people who turn to it with confidence at the first sign of a skin blemish. Easy and economical to use. Quick and gentle in action. Ask your druggist for

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any druggist.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

A WOMAN is never over thirty in the eyes of a man who loves her.

• • •

No matter what a man's reputation as a Don Juan may be, every new girl fancies that she is the Christopher Columbus who has discovered his "real heart" at last.

• • •

You can get a "used car" that is almost like new; but most of the masculine hearts you get these days have run so many miles that their batteries are all worn out and apt to "go dead" after the first few kisses.

• • •

You never can convince a woman in love that she is making a fool of herself any more than you can convince an intoxicated man that he is making a spectacle of himself.

• • •

A sweetheart is always more beautiful than a wife; because a man looks at a woman before marriage through the rose colored glasses of fascination; after marriage he scrutinizes her through the magnifying glass of cold judgment.

• • •

A lover's promises are like the weather reports. You can't put much reliance in them; but no matter how often they fool you it doesn't prevent you from listening to them just as hopefully next time.

• • •

The sad thing about looking for flaws in the man you love is that you will always FIND them—but you'll go right on loving him just the same.

• • •

The love of money is the root of all them May-and-December marriages.

All sorts of headaches usually yield to a Bayer Aspirin tablet. But don't let the acquaintance end there! Aspirin offers the same welcome relief from neuritis and neuralgia, and even rheumatic pains. To break up a cold, or end a toothache; for children, as well as adults, nothing seems quite so effective—and so harmless—as Aspirin. But the box must say Bayer; the name must be on every tablet, too, to be genuine Bayer Aspirin. Remember that! All druggists, with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Bayer Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

CITY OF BOSTON.
TRANSIT DEPARTMENT.
Proposals for Building Subway Sub-Power
Station, Dorchester Rapid Transit.
The Transit Department of the City of Boston, 1 Beacon street, seventh floor, invites proposals from citizens of the United States and corporations or other legal associations not controlling interest in the control of a like corporation organized under the laws of the United States, any State or Territory thereof, for building a sub-power station on Neals street, Dorchester. The work consists of the construction of a steel frame, brick and concrete building, also concrete foundations and other appurtenances as shown on the plans. A bond of an approved surety company will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in a sum of 45 per cent of the total bid price.
Proposals should be filled out and signed by the bidder on forms to be obtained at this office, inclosed in a sealed envelope, labeled "Proposals for Building Sub-Power Station, Dorchester Rapid Transit," and delivered to the department or to its secretary before 12 o'clock noon on Wednesday, November 16, 1927, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. A properly certified check in the sum of five thousand ($5,000) dollars, payable to the city, must accompany the proposal. The check shall become the property of the city if the contract is not executed by the bidder within the time prescribed after the date of the notification by the department of the acceptance of the proposal and the readiness of the contractor to execute it.
Proposals must be made to conform to the printed drawings, specifications, etc., on file and deposited by the bidder with the City Authorized Agent, Room 801, Bell Building, 15
Beacon street, for obtaining the proposals. Plans, specifications and proposals may be seen there during the advertised real estate hour deposit of $5 in cash or by certified check will be required for a set of plans and one set of specifications. Mutilation of them will be deemed sufficient cause for the forfeiture of said deposits.
By order of the City of Boston Transit Department.
A. D. ADAIR,
(Oct. 29) Acting Secretary.

Watch for Your Answer on This Page Every Day

Question—How soon will I be married?
—H. K.
Answer—I think that your future husband is right here in Boston and you will meet him this coming year.
Q—What can be done to prevent my son from drinking?—E. M.
A—Try to associate with the strong people and it will be easy to refuse. Believe that he is strong right" and will stop because he wishes to.
There is nothing you can really do because your kind influence and try and develop his will power.
Q—Will I achieve success as a writer?
—M. K.
A—You will have several little disappointments before success really comes, but have patience as a manuscript will be accepted in the next six months.
Q—Will I ever get well?—E. H. J.
A—I think that you will be entirely cured and become really well again, but you must use common sense. You are always recording.
Q—What can you tell me relative to my property?—F. M.
A—I think that the only solution to your problem is a sale and in that way division can be made that will be satisfactory to all.
Q—Will I ever get out of my financial difficulties?—H.
A—You will find that the financial situation will ease up for you this year and I am sure that by the date you mention you will be able to manage better and have things easier.
Q—Does a certain man love me and will he ever marry me?—Miss M. H.
A—I feel that this man thinks highly in love with you but I am afraid you would not be satisfied with him and that in time the infatuation will wear off.
Q—Here you will my ex-husband remarried and what is he going to do without the property?—Will I ever marry again?—F. C. E.
A—I think he will marry before long and it seems that you will be able to make him gather with the support of the children. I think that you will have more with your share of the time and so for your marriage—it is some years away for you.
Q—Why am I so disconcerted with my husband?—M. E.
A—You are in love with love and your husband is not the type to meet your ideals in romance. Your woman's heart longs for more of life and you are starving for much of love and the material things.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

College and Business

Mr. Barron Says They "Don't Hitch"

When doctors of education disagree so radically as they appear to have been doing of late the poor layman must be pardoned a feeling of bewilderment.

Clarence W. Barron, veteran and successful publisher of financial newspapers, calls one of New England's ailments its "uneconomic and unsound educational system."

Our universities, Mr. Barron complains, have deflected the thought of youth AWAY from Business. It is his belief that:

"A business and financial training should not be cut off from the universal course; it should be knit in with it. Every college president, every instructor, every professor needs it. The scientific man, the man of society and leisure need it to manage the business side of their lives. . . . Education should give one the mastery of the tools of one's trade or service."

Knowing something of Mr. Barron's broad experience in finance and industry we are impressed by what he says.

But on another page of the newspaper we read that among all the States of the Union in matters of education FIRST PLACE BELONGS TO MASSACHUSETTS!

This time the doctor is Professor William C. Bagley, of Columbia University, addressing the 50th annual convention of the Bristol County Teachers' Association, Fall River.

"New England, which gave this land its start in matters of education, has seemed to lag behind some of the Western States in recent years, but after a comprehensive survey of the 48 States and their standards, I would still place New England in the foreground, with Massachusetts first, followed by Rhode Island and Connecticut."

"Well," you say, "this man is an educator, NOT connected with a New England institution. HE ought to know what he is talking about and he appears to be fair-minded. Perhaps the grand national rush to college and university is all right, after all."

But wait, here is the report of another convention of teachers, the Hampshire County Association, in Northampton. Here, the speaker is Professor Dallas Lore Sharp, of Boston University. What does HE say?

That he "might have obtained a better education if he had played hookey all but five days of the 19 years he studied in school and college!"

Here in Boston, President William Mather Lewis of Lafayette College tells the teachers of Middlesex County that the "boys and girls of today form a generation that has more intellectual curiosity, more desire to learn and more seriousness of purpose than any generation before." What they NEED, Dr. Lewis says, is "leadership." Mr. Barron might agree to that, might say this is the point he is driving at. HIS complaint is that modern education has NOT kept pace with the progress in science, social progress, business progress or financial progress:

"Is it any wonder that the 700 colleges and 600,000 students of this country are making so little impression upon our business life; that the men who give us transportation by rail and by motor highway are FROM THE FIELD AND FACTORY?

"A University could never have brought forth a Vanderbilt in transportation, a Rockefeller in oil, an Edison with more than a thousand inventions, or a Henry Ford with pioneering genius in a new form of transportation with more than 10,000,000 motors to his credit, or 40 per cent. of the world's output. A university could have killed, by negations and deflections of their active minds into books and libraries, the individual initiative that has here given the world its greatest modern services."

There was printed on Friday, last, a report that the total annual expenditure for public schools in this State had jumped $50,000,000 in fifteen years, or 350 per cent. In 1910, the expense was $20,135,745; the figure for the year 1924 was $70,107,400.

The people of Massachusetts would spend more, even twice as much, if they could feel that they were getting "the worth" of their money.

President Sills, of Bowdoin College, told the Bowdoin Alumni of Boston not many months ago that colleges exist "to teach a man how to live and NOT how to make a living." If Mr. Barron believes that knowing how to live isn't worth a hoot unless you know how to make a living he is not alone in that opinion.

Nahum the Prophet

HE Saw the Automobile Coming

A pious citizen of Providence, R. I., sitting in the front room with the Bible in his lap and glancing down occasionally upon the traffic in the street below, suddenly comes upon certain verses in the Book of Nahum which cause him to wonder if the end may not be nearer than some of us expect. The verses are the third and fourth of Chapter II:

"The chariots shall be with flaming torches in a day of his preparation; the chariots shall range in the streets; they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches; they shall run like the lightnings."

When that prophecy was written there were no "broad ways," narrow roads in the country, narrow streets in cities and towns. The swiftest contrivances known to man were drawn by camels, donkeys, horses.

So, the gentleman in Providence puts a very natural question. "How," he asks, "how did the prophet know that a day would come when city streets and suburban highways would be built wider and become over-run with vehicles which 'run like lightning'"?

Our answer would be that the prophet knew because he WAS a prophet, but someone may have a much better answer, and if so we shall be glad to print it.

THE FACTORY AND THE SCHOOL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

GRADUALLY good United States common sense is modifying our school system. The medievalism is being lopped off.

The "classic" idea of an education is to produce a school teacher, a minister, a physician, a lawyer, a literary worker or a gentleman of means who can patronize the professions.

The great mass of human beings in this or any other country do not belong to these scholarly classes. And a system of public education ought not to be for any class or classes but for the common man.

In Dayton, Ohio, many marked signs of cerebration are manifest. For one thing, they have a city manager who looks after city business as a skilled superintendent would look after a shop. They have eliminated politics from street-cleaning.

But the best thing Dayton has done is to make its factories a part of its public school system.

A boy who wants to learn a trade can spend a week in school and a week in the shop alternately for two years. His shop work counts as part of his high school course.

If he wants still more training he can, after high school, attend the University of Cincinnati for five years under the same conditions, studying in school and getting practical experience with machines, and at the end of his course receive a university degree.

All the while he is training he can earn money enough to support himself.

Many boys leave school because they want to earn money. This plan remedies that mistake.

Boys who drop out of school in the lower grades average, at the age of thirty-two, only $10.25 a week. Boys who stay in school and receive definite technical training average, at the age of thirty-two, $43 a week. Training counts in dollars and cents.

This plan is not an untried experiment. At Fitchburg, Mass., it has worked well for nine years. Many boys who have taken the course in that school are now in the trades, and in every instance their efficiency is a proof of the value of the plan.

The best part of the whole idea is that it makes education mean something. It means efficiency as well as culture.

The time will come when the training of youth will be an integral part of all business.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT are a baby's chances in this, the richest country on earth?

Not so good!

But haven't we wonderful doctors, nurses and hospitals? Indeed, we have! But, if you're thinking of raising a family in this country consider this fact—FORTY-SIX PER CENT. OF THE COUNTIES IN THE UNITED STATES HAVE NO HOSPITALS.

Forty-six per cent.—almost half of the counties in America without hospitals! And in the rest of the territory there are vast numbers of people, American born people, who are so ignorant and fearful that they will not go to a hospital unless forced.

Moreover, after June 30, 1929, Uncle Sam will withdraw maternity aid and there will be no Federal provision made for their help or instruction.

Some of these figures were recently published in this department. Whereupon scores of indignant citizens protested against the writer's "lack of patriotism in exposing such humiliating conditions." Moreover, they triumphantly concluded that they "didn't believe it any way."

"Patriotism" which refuses to face facts and allows thousands of babies and mothers to die annually as a sacrifice to false pride is a pretty poor asset for any country and we're beginning to realize it.

The Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor issues some reassuring figures. Twenty-four States have established infant-care classes for young girls. At least 32,307 girls are being trained to be competent mothers.

Four States have correspondence courses in motherhood, with an enrollment of 6,110 women. Such a course has recently been installed in Massachusetts by the State Division of Health and Education through the State University Extension. The fee for this course is $4.

The course of 15 lessons includes prenatal care, practical preparations for confinement, care of the nursing mother, the sick baby and weaning. Papers written by the students enrolled in it are corrected with necessary comments and suggestions by an experienced physician in the public health service for the State.

Here and there courses of child care are being started in the public schools. Alabama is even considering sex instruction in her schools, amid the outraged clamor of a lot of Nice People, who think it frightful that our future mothers and fathers should be told where babies come from.

And we're even insisting on regulation and supervision of midwives. Hitherto the ranch cow, confined by the town vet, had 100 per cent. better care than the wife who was nursed by an ignorant midwife. Now we're realizing that the baby is at least as valuable as a calf and midwives will have to know how to do something beside swap gossip.

But it's an uphill fight and Congress isn't helping much. For five years we had a maternity and infancy act, which was a blessing to poor and isolated mothers and babies. During the last Congress the act came up again and was defeated, the proceedings being masked by a clever amendment providing for a two-years' extension, after which the act should cease to be in effect. It is enough to make one wish that every Congressman who voted against the act might be forced to have twins, fifty miles from the nearest doctor and without benefit of twilight sleep!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

I DO not know just why, but yet,
In spite of folly and regret of some dark mood, I sense a never-failing care that lies about me everywhere and whispers, when I would despair, that life is good. I do not know just how, but still, though much I lack in gifts of skill and in the never-bending will that must prevail, I feel that while I use my best of purpose, energy and zest for every struggle, every test, I shall not fail. There is no reason I can name that keeps and purpose with each act is blent, alight this shining flame of faith, more dear than love or fame, and yet I know life is a coin not lightly spent and so with spirit well-content my way I go.

ANOTHER UNIVERSE IS NOW VISIBLE

By Garrett P. Servis,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest

DURING early November the greatest of the "island universes" hangs, a wisp of faint fire in the sky, near the zenith, over the United States. Anybody can see it with the naked eye, looking like a fuzzy speck among the stars. A small telescope shows it in the shape of a slightly luminous spindle. Photographed with a large telescope it appears as a wonderful system of concentric nebulous rings, of a long oval outline, broken into condensed masses, or stretched out in irregular bands, with an immense oblong mass of greater brightness in the common centre of the rings.

Careful study has demonstrated that what looks like rings are, in fact, spirals streaming away in gradually widening curves from the central mass of the nebula, all in one plane, like wheel spokes. The oblong shape of the nebula is evidently due to its plane lying at a slope instead of square to our line of sight.

The spectrum of this nebula shows that, though it looks like a gaseous cloud it must, in reality, be composed of millions of stars and since its distance has been proved to be far greater than that of the remotest known parts of what we call the starry universe, the conclusion has been drawn that it must be another universe than ours, seen dimly shining in the depths of space, so far away that the light of its stars is blended into a uniform glow, and takes a million years to reach us. With very powerful photographing telescopes swarms of the component stars of the Andromeda nebula are shown in its outer portions. In the denser parts the stars are so numerous that no "resolution" is possible with existing instruments.

From the data now at hand it is possible to calculate the size of this great "island universe." Its diameter proves to be about 270 quadrillions of miles. (A quadrillion is a billion times a million.) But, enormous as this size appears, it is much less than that of our "universe, so that we can look as "astonishingly" as human nature may demand upon that other universe of smaller dimensions.

But even from our stupendous distance we can detect some of the great events occurring in that other universe. For instance, new stars have been seen breaking forth in it just as they do in our stellar system, and the spectra of such stars have been studied and their course has been watched during their brief periods of visibility, for they, like our new stars, are evidently the product of collisions or violent explosions. Also it is possible for our astronomers to watch the variations and record the periods of variable stars in the Andromeda nebula and other similar nebulae, which, like it, are probably outlying universes.
